YOUNG WOMAN TAKES POISON

Swift Run in the Police Automobile Saves Her Life.

Unable to forget the unhappiness brought about by the desertion of her husband and the absence of her mother, Mrs. Abbey Glasgow, a pretty young wife of twenty-two years, and living at 864 1-2 Lydia street, swallowed the contents of a two-ounce bottle of laudanum with suicidal intent. She drained the deadly poison about midnight last night after the other people in the house had retired. The noise of her struggles attracted the attention of the sleepers in the house. They rushed to her assistance and called a police officer.

WANTS TO DIE.

The drug was fast taking effect on the young woman, but when the police automobile arrived she was taken to the Receiving Hospital, where Steward Borchert drained the poison from the woman's stomach. After her life had been saved, Mrs. Glasgow sat up on the operating table, much relieved, but still declaring that she would yet end her life.

"I have nothing to live for," said the young woman to Attendant John J. Travers. "My mother is in Los Angeles, where I formerly lived, my husband has left me, and I might just as well pass out of this world. I will not be satisfied until I have made the job a good one."

Mrs. Glasgow was in a much brighter mood when she left the hospital to be taken to her apartments on Lydia street. Just before going out of the door she promised the hospital authorities that she would go home and go to sleep and try to forget her troubles.

FEW FRIENDS.

The people in the house, where she has stayed but a short time, say the young woman has been despondent for some time and they have often held fears that some time she would attempt to end her life. She keeps herself in seclusion and has but few acquaintances who visit her in her hour of grief.

TRANSCONTINENTAL LINES ARE OUT OF COMMISSION

Sympathizers Tap the Wires---Strikers Hold Meeting and Appoint Committees---Western Union Now Offers Bonus.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 23.—

The telegraph operators claim they practically have the strike won.

The Western Union and Postal officials declare that they have beaten the strikers.

It is going to be a bitter fight and it will now be a battle to a finish. The strikers are determined.

The headquarters of the local strikers are at Sunset Hall, West Oakland. This is where the strikers are holding their meetings.

President Samuel Small of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union, says: "At West Oakland only seven of the 175 Western Union operators remained at work. We have the companies tied up in a knot in both Oakland and San Francisco. We will surely win."

The Western Union has offered a bonus to all operators who will return to work. The company claims twenty-five men have returned to their places.

The trans-continental wires have been tampered with and temporarily put out of commission in several places by sympathetic operators.

RUN DOWN BY AN AUTOMOBILE

Mr. and Mrs. Tapia Are Nearly Killed on the Twelfth-Street Dam.

A. Tapia and wife, while driving along Twelfth street this afternoon, were run into by an automobile driven by G. C. Troth of the Fruitvale Lumber Company. The accident occurred at Oak and Twelfth streets. Both the occupants of the buggy were thrown to the ground and the vehicle was demolished.

Mrs. Tapia sustained a contusion of the neck and shoulder. Unless she is internally injured, she will recover; but at this time the physician is unable to say whether or not such injuries exist. Mr. Tapia, except for a few bruises and scratches, was uninjured.

Mr. Tapia claims that the automobile was running on the wrong side of the street and at a high rate of speed. He said that he was unable to get out of the way, as there were rigs on each side of him. The driver of the auto lost control of his machine. He also says that he intends suing Troth for damages.

Strange to say, the horse did not attempt to run away, but stood perfectly still after getting up from the ground.

G. C. Troth resides at 65 Valley street.

Mr. and Mrs. Tapia reside on Thirteenth avenue, Diamond canyon.

MANY TO WORK California-St. Men Stand Pat

(By ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

SAN FRANCISCO, June 22.—The places of the striking carmen are fast being filled and, according to the United Railways officials, there are not enough jobs left to go around among them, even if they were willing to return to work. The company now has 1000 men in its employ and this number is augmented at the rate of thirty or forty a day. So many applications have, it is said, been received from men in the east who are willing to pay their own fares here in order to obtain the high rate of wages that is paid that the company has decided to pay no more transportation.

The former platform men employed by the California street railways yesterday decided that none should return to work unless all men went back in a body and under union conditions, an eight hour day for a flat wage of $3. The meeting was called because of the claim of the superintendent that he had applications from a number of his former men who were ready to renounce the union and return to work, when the road resume operations.

When the question was put to remain on the vote was, it is claimed, unanimous.

GIVEN THE LIMIT Fiend Sent to City Prison

Having pleaded guilty to attacking little Alice Williams, who resides with her parents at 1133 East Nineteenth street, Chester G. Farmer, a machinist, who has a shop in Melrose, was sentenced this morning by Police Judge Mortimer Smith to six months imprisonment in the city prison and to pay a fine of $500.

In passing sentence, Judge Smith declared that the parents of the child were greatly to blame for allowing the little one to visit Farmer's shop, but he asserted that there were no extenuating circumstances in Farmer's case and he was given the limit.

The assault to which Farmer pleaded guilty was committed last December, but the parents of the Williams girl did not learn of the assault upon her until some time later, when they were informed by the principal of the school in East Oakland, which Alice and her playmates attend. The principal heard the children disputing about Farmer and their visits to his place and in this way learned of the vicious attack.

The police were notified by Mr. and Mrs. Williams, as well as by Mr. and Mrs. Cardozo, of 1202 East Twenty-second street, whose little daughter, May, also claimed to have been attacked by Farmer. Warrants were issued for the arrest of the defendant and an investigation of the little girl's stories were made by the police.

According to the statements of Prosecuting Attorney Hennessey, made to Judge Smith this morning, the police found that Farmer had been in the habit of having little girls frequent his place and that he attacked Alice Williams.

Attorney Rawson appeared for Farmer and said that his client had always borne a good reputation and that there were several extenuating circumstances to be taken into consideration in the passing of sentence. Judge Smith did not agree with Rawson and Farmer received the limit.

LATEST NEWS FROM ALAMEDA AND BERKELEY

IS PROOF OF HER SCHOOLS

Architect Supervises Erection of
All Berkeley Institutions—
Day Labor is Feature.

BERKELEY, June 22.—There is one branch of departmental work in Berkeley that is always looked after closely and the latest down-to-date methods are adopted as soon as presented. This is the school system and its care.

Town hall, police station, streets, street work, sewers, parks and in fact every other public building in Berkeley is supervised by the architect. The fact that the state university is located here does not alone make Berkeley famous, but its grammar and high schools are mentioned to tourists as points of interest.

With all the comforts and high-class system now here there are too limited funds to make the school buildings such as will be necessary for the growing needs of the town.

ARCHITECT SUPERVISES.

Work is done under direction and personal supervision of Architect A. H. Broad, who is in the employ of the state of California. In fact every day labor, this being found to be the most economical and at the same time the best that can be had, is used in the construction of the buildings. It is necessary to make repairs on the high school building after the earthquake. The board promptly rejected all presented and under direction of Broad the work was done by day labor at a cost of some $6,000 under the price named in the lowest bid.

This plan is now in vogue and is being erected on Alameda way, near Grove, and adjoining the high school. Work is being done on this building as fast as possible. It is expected the building will be in readiness for occupancy when school opens in the fall of 1924. This building will be the finest in the city and compare with any in the state. It will be a model of modern architecture and now under way is completed by the time next term of school opens there will be no more for better and more accommodations will be furnished in nearly all of the schools.

NEW SCHOOLS.

The Bancroft way school will be completed and as this is one of fourteen rooms it will be put in the care of the new arrivals in Berkeley. Five rooms are being built at the Haast street school to be used for primary grades and these are being built at a cost of about $2,000. The Rose street school, which is to cost about $200, will be completed in time for next term. This is an eight-room building, of which four will be used for the primary grades and the other four left until needed.

At the San Pablo school the $16,000 addition is rapidly nearing completion. When finished this will give the school sixteen rooms. Manual training and domestic science buildings are being built in connection with the Lincoln, Le Conte and Whittier schools and these will be put into operation in the fall. The cost of these buildings is $15,000 each and are two-story structures. The lower floors will be used for manual training and the upper floors for domestic science. The San Pablo school will also have a one-story building for manual training.

MINISTER AND ASSESSOR ALMOST COME TO BLOWS

Preacher Calls Official "Graft" When Latter Demands Receipt for Alleged Overpaid Poll Tax.

BERKELEY, June 22.—The Rev. William M. Bell, of 1014 Cedar street, bishop of the United Brethren church, and Deputy County Assessor Alan G. Clarke had a war of words yesterday afternoon that nearly ended in a personal encounter. The affair took place in Clarke's office, 1071 University avenue and was brought up over collection of poll tax.

Clarke asked for both receipts when the Rev. Bell declared he had paid his poll tax twice, but the bishop could produce only one. Clarke was denounced by the Rev. Bell as a grafter and then the war was on. Bishop Bell stood his ground until the storm cleared away a bit. Then he explained that he had not wished to be taken seriously when he spoke of "grafting," this word having been used in a joking way, with none but pleasant feelings inspiring the phrase.

During the quarrel, Deputy George Drum reached for a telephone to call in the police when Bell left and the war was at an end.

Referring to the trouble Bishop

Bell said later: "I have been before the public for 25 years, and this is the first time that anything approaching a quarrel has come into my life. I went to the deputy assessor to secure the return of $2, my poll tax having been collected twice this year, once through the medium of a check, which I showed Mr. Clarke, and once through my wife, during my absence from home. Mr. Clarke refused to refund the money, apparently ignoring the receipts I presented to prove that I told the truth. There was absolutely no question of the correctness of the receipts, and I was amazed at the refusal to return the extra money I had paid. The same thing had occurred the year before and the refund had been made at once on that occasion. When Mr. Clarke denied me the return of my money today I was puzzled and surprised, and expressed my opinion of the proceedings in a way that angered him. When I remarked in a joking way that the graft spirit seemed to permeate all classes he began to abuse me, threatening to remove me from the place, and apparently tried to discharge articles of furniture which to attack me. It was an unpleasant scene. I left at once. I consulted with the president of the bank where I do business in Berkeley and was told by him that Mr. Clarke was not justified in refusing me the payment I asked. I shall refer the matter to Mr. Clarke's superior, Mr. Dalton, and of course it will be attended to satisfactorily in the end.

Major Clarke declares that he had no wish to collect Bishop Bell's poll tax twice—"once is enough." He says that the bishop produced a bank check marked paid and a poll tax receipt, whereas two receipts should have been shown before a refund was made.

"I resented being called a grafter," said Clarke, "and told the man who thus addressed me to leave the office. I did not care to talk further with him. He left and I am making all the necessary arrangements to have the books I find that Mr. Bell paid his poll tax twice, and that receipts were issued to him. If he had presented the receipts there would have been no trouble. I am not making a receipted bank check as a receipt and that was what Mr. Bell showed me."

HOROSCOPE OF R. E. PARR AUGURS SATISFACTORILY

Attorney for Accused Alamedan Says Planets Are in Good Combination for Handling Young Man Case.

ALAMEDA, June 22.—Through a horoscope that he had made of Ralph S. Parr, the young bookkeeper of the Burlington Club who is accused of having forged a check for $600 upon the Bank of Alameda, his attorney, Howard K. James, declares that he has satisfied himself that the youthful defendant will not commit suicide.

The lawyer says that he feared that Parr would resort to self-destruction after being arrested recently in Denver where he was held in jail until Sheriff Frank Barnett arrived and brought him back here. James, therefore, had recourse to astrology, which he asserts works in well with the law, and from a study of the aspect of the planets when Parr was born the lawyer became convinced that the young bookkeeper would never die by the Parr hand.

Parr appeared before Justice of the Peace E. E. Johnson yesterday morning and was arraigned. His preliminary examination was set for next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. Parr's first appearance in court did not seem to perturb him. He carried himself in a cheerful manner and stood during the entire proceedings. Parr senior accompanied his son to court. At the request of the attorney for the defense the preliminary hearing was set for next Tuesday morning in order to accommodate F. H. Colburn, assistant secretary of the California Bankers' Association, who will assist in the prosecution.

Parr's bail was fixed at $5000. When Attorney James was asked whether efforts should be made to secure the release of the defendant on bonds, the lawyer answered: "No, not in a million years. We cannot afford to have such a person as Parr running at large. It would be unwise to take any chances with him. We believe that he is mentally unbalanced and intend to prove it by medical testimony. I was afraid that Parr would take his life after his arrest in Denver because his horoscope that convinced me that he is not of the kind that destroy themselves."

ALAMEDA, June 22.—Dr. and Mrs. George Bull will leave next week for the Pitt river district, where they are to fish for two weeks. Mrs. Bull is fully as clever with the rod as her husband and each year they spend a couple of weeks among the streams of the State in search of the wily trout. It will be the first time that the district they wish to tap but they believe they will be fully compensated by the sport on their arrival.

Mrs. Edgar Painter, Miss Janet Painter and Miss Pauline Painter, have returned from the next six weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Scott, Miss Deane Tonsdale and Dr. Joy Stephens have returned from an automobile trip through the Sierran country.

They were gone 10 days and not once during that time was there a mishap to the machine. They report the roads to be in excellent condition.

Mrs. Mary Dickson, who is now in Canada, has written interesting letters to friends in this city. She says that Canada is a marvelous country. She is on her way to visit the Jamestown Exposition.

Percy Murdoch left yesterday for Oroville, where he has accepted a position with the Western Pacific company. William Bissell Jr., another Alameda resident, has been there with the company for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Stein leave Monday on a visit to Fairbanks, Alaska, where they will visit their daughter, Mrs. Reed Jones. Fred Van Sicken, son of E. W. Van Sicken, is to enter Harvard at the beginning of the next semester.

Arthur Tarpey, son of M. W. Tarpey, the well-known Democratic politician, has returned from Trinity county.

Miss Alva Ladd, who resigned from the school department last month, is to become the bride of Chester Burks at her home in San Francisco tomorrow.

Public Ownership and Quack Politics.

Leaving aside the predicament of Mayor Schmitz and his guilt or innocence of the numerous charges brought against him, his reasons for vetoing the $720,000 appropriation for the reconstruction of the Geary street railroad as a municipal enterprise would seem to be conclusive. Whether the conduit system has proved a failure, as Schmitz asserts, we do not know, nor is the soundness of the principle of public ownership a factor in reaching the conclusion that it is inexpedient at this time for the city to expend $720,000 out of this year's revenues to construct a railroad bed on Geary street.

The Geary street scheme is not an emergency matter. The franchise of the old company has long since expired, and the operation of the old cable road up to the time of the carmen's strike was by sufferance of the municipal authorities. If it be deemed expedient for the city to engage in street railway business, the Geary street scheme can very well be allowed to remain in abeyance for a year or two while other really pressing municipal needs are attended to. If the Geary street line were already constructed, the city has no rolling stock or other equipment, and would have to lease the road out to a private corporation or make another large investment to equip the enterprise.

The United Railroads never owned the Geary street road and now has no interest in it. The road itself begins at Market street, at the junction of Kearny, and terminates at Golden Gate Park, near the Chutes. It has no cross-town or ferry connections, and can issue transfers to no other line. It does not connect with the Presidio and California street lines, which are independent—nominally, at least—of the United Railroads. If operated by the municipality the line could only give an isolated service along Geary street to the park, and can therefore be only a small factor in passenger carriage throughout the city.

But the chief point of consideration is that San Francisco has been so sorely smitten by calamity that her property-owners are in no condition to bear tax burdens not imperatively necessary. Large expenditures for schools and other public buildings, street improvement and sewer repair are immediately necessary. Many of the principal thoroughfares are practically impassable; all the business streets are in a terrible state of dilapidation, while a large proportion of the school children are crowded into temporary wooden shacks wholly inadequate in size and unsuited in structure to the uses of education. The various departments of the city and county government are scattered about in temporary quarters for which enormous rental is paid.

A twenty-cent extra levy for street repairs was included in the budget, but this was also vetoed by the imprisoned mayor as unnecessary if the proposed expenditure of the $720,000 on the Geary street road is not made. It is estimated that the extra tax levy for streets will yield $500,000. Street work is one of the ordinary operating expenses of city government, while building street railroads cannot be classed as among the necessary municipal activities. It is juggling with common sense to appropriate a large sum out of the ordinary revenues for investment in a street railroad and then levy an extra tax to meet an operating expense.

Supervisor Gallagher says the Mayor's veto of the twenty cents extra tax will stand, but that his veto of the Geary street appropriation will be overridden. At whose bidding will this be done? If the program he announces is carried out, the streets will have to go unrepaired that the city may build a roadbed that it cannot operate when completed without a further expenditure, while the several departments must remain scattered around for an indefinite period. If this be government by the Big Stick, it is not the kind that appeals to business judgment.

If we are any judge of the signs of the times, the man who has a good job will do well to hold on to it.

Flushed with his triumph in winning the Derby, Richard Croker says his father was not a workingman but an "Irish gentleman." A good many people believe a man can be an Irish gentleman as well as a workingman. However, it is a matter of history that Croker's grandfather was a Protestant "squireen"—that is, a small landowner—and an Orangeman. The Tammany boss married a Catholic wife and embraced the Catholic faith. He is technically right in saying that his father was an "Irish gentleman," for under British law the word gentleman describes a definite legal status and a defined social rank. But a large majority of Irish squireens are a shabby lot of gentlemen—a penurious, hard-drinking overbearing set, who abused and rackrented their tenants worse than any other class of landlords.

The Basis of Good Government.

A weekly paper suggests that the commission system of government which has proved so effective in Galveston would be a remedy for the misgovernment which afflicts San Francisco. The Galveston commission is elective, and the influences that placed and kept in power the present regime in San Francisco would have elected a commission that would have followed precisely the course which has resulted in the existing condition in San Francisco. A government of four or five commissioners would have greater and more concentrated powers than are lodged in the Mayor and Supervisors of San Francisco. What kind of a government could be expected from a commission named and dominated by Abe Ruef?

No amount of sophistry can obscure the fact that the electorate is alone responsible for the condition existing across the bay. No form of government will make men honest and no organic law, no matter how wisely framed or on what lines drawn, can prevent the voters from elevating demagogues and scoundrels to office.

San Francisco got the kind of government she voted for, and some of those who are now loudest in advocating lynch law methods to get rid of it were active advocates of its perpetuation till public sentiment took a turn or their profitable connection with graft and misrule was severed. Some of the most vociferous reformers remind one of the class of "respectable" women who are so tortured by memories of their own past that they are more virtuous than women who have never been otherwise, and vindicate their own chastity by impeaching the chastity of others. Like apostates, they become persecutors in the cause they have newly embraced.

Good government and official integrity depend upon public virtue, and are based fundamentally on the conscience and patriotism of the mass of the community. They are not the product of constitutions, laws and charters, but of intelligence and good citizenship. The man who turns against a corrupt administration because it no longer suits his pocket is not a reformer.

citizen nor a true reformer. Motive and design cannot be eliminated from reform movements, because all genuine reform must proceed from honest intention and good motives.

Changing the character of a municipal government will not alter the fact that the quality of the government depends upon the quality of the citizenships. The standard of government is merely a political reflection of the standard of citizenship, hence movements to purge and purify official administration must be inspired and directed by conscientious motives.

PHYSICIAN WANTS CITY TO AID UNFORTUNATE

Editor TRIBUNE.—In a recent issue of your paper a gentleman signing himself "One of your many subscribers," voiced the sentiment that it is a crying shame that Oakland, with its teeming thousands, makes no adequate provision for the care of its unfortunately afflicted by accident. True it is we have a Receiving Hospital (under county control), and it is also true we have a patrol wagon. We have, however, no city ambulance, neither have we a county ambulance stationed in the city.

We have no city hospital, emergency or otherwise, neither have we any conveyance to carry the afflicted to speedy assistance. It is really barbarous to contemplate such a condition.

Our county hospital is seven miles away under the control of the county. Official Oakland makes no provision for its indigent sick, neither does it care for its unfortunately afflicted.

A few weeks ago an elderly gentleman afflicted with heart disease died in a chair in an office on Fourteenth street, directly opposite the health office.

The health officials, the police officials and the officials of the city hall, directly across the street, were called on for help. None of these responded, because they had no legal responsibility in the matter. After an hour's suffering the man died. Is it unreasonable to suppose that this life might have been saved had prompt assistance been rendered?

In the case above referred to the good Samaritans in attendance sought private medical assistance, after vainly trying to get public help. I was called an hour after the attack, at which time it was my painful duty to pronounce the man dead. Shall we look upon these affairs with indifference? Shall we echo the sentiment of the Celtic poet of the Black Hole of Calcutta and say, "Here's to those who have gone before, and here's to the next to die?" or shall we wake up to the fact that Oakland is now a metropolitan city with metropolitan responsibilities? Respectfully yours,
AN OAKLAND PHYSICIAN.

CHARITY MISTAKEN.

J. G. Phelps Stokes spoke with good humored regret at a dinner in New York of a charity that had failed. "But it failed through its own fault," said Mr. Stokes. "It failed because it was mistaken. It suggests to me an experience of a friend of mine in Ireland. My friend, at about this season last year, was motoring through a remote region of Ireland and one day he came upon a poor old woman seated with all her humble furniture about her little cabin. My friend was profoundly moved. Here before his very eyes an eviction, a real Irish eviction, was taking place. He got out of his car and gave the old woman a 50-cent note. 'Tell me,' he said, 'what is the trouble, my poor friend?' Bobbing and courtesying her gratitude, the old woman replied: 'Sure, sir, me could man's whitewashin'.'

ONE FEATURE OF THE CAR STRIKE

Oakland, Cal., June 20, 1907.

Editor TRIBUNE.—I beg leave to ask for a small space in your estimable paper to express my feelings regarding the carmen's strike in San Francisco. How these carmen expect to receive assistance from the public at large is beyond all comprehension and reason. To explain, I will state a few instances, that I know to be facts.

My wife, who is a theatrical performer, is engaged at a certain theater in San Francisco this week, and going to rehearsal last Monday morning she boarded a car at the ferry. On her arrival at the theater she was informed that if she rode on the cars again she would be hissed off the stage, and not allowed to work. Leaving the theater that night she took passage on a carman's bus. She was the only lady occupant, the rest being men, and they were all drunk. They became insulting, and my wife asked the driver if he would ask them to refrain from using such vile language, and the reply she received was, "You'll have to stand for it." Going to the theater today, she boarded another bus, and the occupants were all ladies, but it took an hour and a half to get to Twenty-second and Mission streets, because the driver and the collector of fares drank whiskey out of a jug all the way.

I also know of a case where a lady used the cars to go to work and because of so doing, her butcher, baker and grocer refused to sell her any more goods, because they fear a boycott. It seems to me that this state of affairs could and should be stopped at once. There is no alternative. If the public use the cars they take chances of being maimed for life, or if they use the busses, they are insulted and abused. I ask in all fairness, what are the people of San Francisco thinking of? How can the carmen ever expect to win? And why do the city officials allow such a state of affairs to exist. Has law and order become a thing of the past?

Very truly yours,
JAMES C. BOIES.

THE MAN HIGHER UP.

Once upon a midnight dreary, while I pondered weak and weary,
Over what the present offered and all that had gone before;
While I nodded, far from napping, suddenly there came a tapping
As of some one gently rapping, rapping, with a hammer on the floor—
Only this and nothing more.

Presently my soul grew stronger—
hesitating no longer,
Straight downstairs in my pajamas to the janitor I flew.
"Krave!" I cried, "upstairs this minute!
To that flat—the devil's in it!"

Stop that tapping and that rapping or this moment you will rue!
But the janitor, not budging, fell to "pooking" and to "rudging,"
And no doubt his time begrudging,
sent me back to bed and stew;
And the tenaz, never slacking, still is tacking, still is tacking.

On that endless roll of matting in the flat above me spread,
And I listen to the clamor of that never ceasing hammer—
sent me back to bed and stew;
Till a suicidal glamour throws its halo o'er my head—
Throws its calm and tempting glamour round about my frenzied head.

"We fishermen," said Havelock Morlon, California's famous fly-caster, "are continually being accused of intemperance. The accusation is false. No intemperate man could ever cast a fly. Yet a friend of mine had the effrontery to declare that out walking in the country he had met an angler beside a brook and had said to the man: 'How can you tell the good places from the bad when you come to a stream?' 'By the bottles,' the man answered. 'Wherever the most empty bottles are scattered is the best place.'"

Rudyard Kipling undoubtedly got his wit from his maternal grandfather, the Rev. George B. Macdonald, a Wesleyan clergyman. In the days when young Macdonald was courting the lady whom he afterward married, the father-in-law to be an aged Methodist with extremely strict notions in regard to the proprieties—was indulgent enough on one occasion to enter the parlor without giving any warning of his approach. The consequence was that he found the sweethearts occupying a single chair. Deeply shocked by this spectacle, the old man solemnly said: "Mr. Macdonald, when I courted Mrs. Brown she sat on one side of the room and I on the other." Macdonald's reply was: "That's what I should have done if I had been courting Mrs. Brown."

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health Is Worth Saving, and Some Oakland People Know How to Save It.

Many Oakland people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is the statement of an Oakland citizen who has reclaimed good health by the use of this remedy:

D. D. Davis, salesman in dress-goods department of Sallinger's department store, residence 1364 Broadway, Alameda, says: "If pain across the back which clung to me persistently for at least twelve months is any indication of kidney complaint, then I had it. Some three years ago, just such an attack occurred and knowing what I suffered, when I noticed in an Oakland paper that Doan's Kidney Pills were for the kidneys and the kidneys alone, I went to the drug store for a box and tried it. If the results obtained from the treatment had not been effective, I never would have gone out of my way to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to persons or friends. I know of more than one who has used Doan's Kidney Pills and who are just as emphatic in their endorsement as I."

FATHER OF 30 CHILDREN; 15 SONS WORK ON FARM

Michigan Man, Claiming to Hold Championship, Disappointed at Not Being Permitted to See Roosevelt.

HOLLAND, Mich., June 22.—Fifteen sons, all at work on his farm, is the reward of F. T. Mether, who resides six miles from here. He has thirty children, all living, and believes he holds the championship.

Mether's first wife gave birth to six, and his present helpmeet is mother to twenty-four. She is 45 and her husband is 63.

Mether went to Lansing during the visit of President Roosevelt to show some of his numerous progeny, but when he approached the executive the secret service men doubted his story and ordered him away. He was much disappointed.

(CHARLOTTE, Tenn., June 22.—President Roosevelt can find no fault with Charlotte in the matter of "race suicide." The family of J. M. Parrotte numbers sixteen sons and two daughters. The family of Alexander Cunningham has fourteen members, the sexes being evenly divided. Pitts Powers has thirteen children. There is not a family in the whole country that has less than eight. Recently John Nabbe moved from Mount Vernon, Ind., to this place. He had only one child. The Nabbes were made to feel their unpopularity to such an extent that they remained in Charlotte only three weeks, moving to Milan, Tenn., where the race suicide feeling is not extreme.

WHEN TO PROPOSE TO A WOMAN Don't Do It on an Empty Stomach

"No man ever proposes to a woman on an empty stomach, and no woman who is hungry and thinking about her dinner ever accepts any love overtures. I never met a divorced woman who didn't have dyspepsia, nor saw a lady who could eat lobster at midnight without after results who didn't get along fairly comfortably with her yokemate. Jealousy and suspicion are really nothing but a superabundance of bile. I tell you that the Turks know a thing or two when a man addresses his lady love not as 'the joy of my heart' but as 'the delight of my liver.'"

"I see," said the Bookkeeper, "that a scientist has discovered that broken hearts can be cured by graduated doses of hydrochloric acid."

"I thought," remarked the Stenographer, caustically, "that the only panacea for a broken heart was money. You can't pick up a newspaper without reading about some tender young creature who is asking the courts to heal her blighted affections by applying a poultice of the long green to them."

"Oh," replied the Bookkeeper, "but this is the real thing in heart break that I'm talking about—the kind that goes off and pines itself to death in secret—not the love for revenue sort."

"How does your what-you-may-call-it work?" inquired the Stenographer.

"Hydrochloric acid," returned the Bookkeeper, "on the stomach. The doctors have proven that what's the matter with the victim of unrequited love is malnutrition, superinduced by worry over the beloved one having gotten cold feet and beat it, so to speak."

FINISH IN SIGHT.

You can see the finish. Digestion out of whack, pale cheeks, lackluster eye, settled melancholy, no interest in life, gradual pining away, death, tears, lovely tombstone with appropriate inscription about 'so young and so forlorn,' and so on. All might be avoided by the simple use of hydrochloric acid in broken doses. Wonderful discovery."

"I suppose, then," said the Stenographer, "that instead of speaking of blighted affections we should call it upset digestion."

"Certainly," responded the Bookkeeper, "I admit that it does sound more romantic to speak of poor Gwendolyn slowly dying of a broken heart than it does to say that since Tom Smith passed up Susan Jones for Mary Brown, Susan's digestion is on the blink, but while the first statement is a mere figure of speech, the latter is a scientific diagnosis of what ails Susan."

"I have always known that the seat of a man's affection was in his stomach," observed the Stenographer, "but I believed that a woman's was located higher up."

"Not at all," returned the Bookkeeper, "we are all built on the same specifications, and we never grieve without hope or lack comfort as long as we have a good appetite and a good digestion."

"The stomach is the real home of the emotions. No man or woman ever loves unless it is working all right."

NOT WHEN HUNGRY.

"No man ever proposed to a woman on an empty stomach, and no woman who is hungry and thinking about her dinner ever accepts any love overtures."

I never met a divorced woman who didn't have dyspepsia, nor saw a lady who could eat lobster at midnight without after results who didn't get along fairly comfortably with her yokemate. Jealousy and suspicion are really nothing but a superabundance of bile. I tell you that the Turks know a thing or two when a man addresses his lady love not as 'the joy of my heart,' but as 'the delight of my liver.'"

"When a woman is fool enough to pine away and die of a broken heart for a man who doesn't love her, and doesn't want her, and won't have her at any price, there is something worse the matter with her than a mere stomach disorder. Her brain is affected. It's soft as mush," said the Stenographer.

"I'd like to see myself shedding a tear, much less losing my complexion and ruining my figure, worrying over any man that didn't have the sense to appreciate my charms. I'd be down on my knees thanking God that I missed tying up with such a chump, and when I saw him out with the woman he preferred before me I'd flaunt myself in his face to show him what a good thing he had missed. I don't know anything that's more of a real satisfaction to an unmarried woman than to range up in her best tailor-made and pattern hat alongside of the bedraggled looking wife of one of her old beaux who has on a last year's dress, with a hat she trimmed herself, and a twin by each hand."

"There are consolations, a heap of 'em, in not getting the man you wanted at one time, and I can't understand a woman who has got little enough pride to let the man who has jilted her have the satisfaction of knowing that he has broken her heart."

"Upset her digestion, corrected the Bookkeeper. "Use hydrochloric acid."

"Well," responded the Stenographer, "I hope to heaven they will, and quit disgracing their sex by trying to force men who don't want to marry 'em to marry 'em by bringing breach of promise suits."

WOMAN HOLD-UP LURES MAN AWAY; ROBS HIM

Female Thug Gets His Purse After Her Companion Had Felled Him With Stone.

TRENTON, June 22.—May Prior, 24 years old, of 147 Perry street, and Clifford Watson, of Philadelphia, have been committed to the county jail to await extradition papers from Pennsylvania on the charge of being implicated in the most daring highway robbery committed in this vicinity in a long while.

According to the confession which the police say the young woman made, she met George Vanellis, this city, a month ago and planned to rob him. Last evening she met the Frenchman by appointment and introduced him to Watson, who strolled by. She suggested a walk across the upper Delaware river bridge to a lonely part of Morrisville, Pa.

They went, and as soon as they were in the village Watson hit Vanellis with a stone and the young woman grabbed his pocketbook.

The robbers ran. As soon as the Frenchman recovered his senses he walked to the bridge, where he espied Watson riding on the front end of a car to Trenton. He jumped on the car, and as soon as it was in Jersey, dropped off to tell his story to Roundsmen Culliton and a patrolman, who promptly arrested Watson. A detective later arrested the young woman at her rooms.

STUMPED

I wonder why the tenor,
Of thin and silky tune,
Has always got a waist band
That rivals a balloon?

I wonder why the basso,
With heavy voice and hale,
Is lighter than a feather
And thinner than a rail?

I wonder why the tall man,
Thin as a dinner knife,
Has always got a sawed-off
And dumpy little wife?

And why the woman Junoesque
(She might tell, but she won't)
Is always married to a small
And frightened-looking runt?

The fats and leans, the talls and shorts,
The tenor and the bass,
All wedded to their opposites,
Are clattering up the place

Till life's a sort of rarebit dream;
I'm puzzled as can be
To know why your wife married you,
And my wife married me.

MASHER IS NEAR DEATH FROM FIRE AND WATER

Girl Hits Him, Ignites Match in Pocket, and He Leaps Into Lake, Almost Drowning.

ITHACA, N. Y., June 22.—A masher narrowly escaped death last night by fire and by water.

He accosted two girls on the pier at Fenwick Harbor, Lake Cayuga, and feigned to push one into the water. She retaliated with the slap of a chin-gle which she carried in her hand. The slap ignited matches that the fresh young man had in his pocket and his clothes caught fire. He jumped off the pier and his plunge put out the fire, but not until he was painfully burned. Then he nearly drowned before he was rescued with pike poles.

SUN DIAL IN MALE ATTIRE

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 22.—Who dressed up the female seminary's new sun-dial? Two weeks ago it was planted in the middle of the campus with impressive ceremonies. It was a handsome dial. The dial was transformed into a college boy last night. High-water trousers, a military-fitting coat and a real "rah-rah" cap worked the metamorphosis.

When President Thwing returning at sunrise from an out-of-town commencement trip, saw the horrid object he dropped his traveling case and with his penknife carved away the disgraceful raiment.

Now he wants to know who was the author of the atrocity. All the Hayden and Guilford girls protest innocence. They accuse the Adelbert boys. They say, as a final and convincing argument, that they don't keep the kind of clothing worn by the dial.

JURY APPRAISES WOMAN AT FIFTY CENTS A POUND

Miss Stufflett, Weight 250, Gets $125 as Damages Inflicted by Trifling With Her Affections.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., June 22.—Miss Amanda Stufflett, who weighs 250 pounds, got damages here yesterday at the rate of 50 cents a pound, in a breach of promise suit which she brought against Daniel Kinsell.

Both live at Royersford. Miss Stufflett is 43 years old and has had hard luck in her love affairs. She testified on the witness stand yesterday that two other men had "gone back on" her, and that when Kinsell mind that she would not continue to meet the insults of his sex with tame endurance.

She said that Kinsell wanted a housekeeper, but when he saw her, he decided he would rather have her for a wife. Miss Stufflett was willing, but Kinsell, who is 43 years old and not so pottle as he once was, got tired of his bargain after a few visits and said the match was off.

The jury gave Miss Stufflett a ver-

COURT SAYS WIFE IS MAN'S FIRST THOUGHT

PITTSBURG, June 22.—"The wife has always first claim on the attentions and time of her husband, no matter what her relatives may think or say. I refuse to grant this divorce."

This was one of the crisp sentences uttered by Judge James S. Young in court here a few days since when he passed on the application for divorce made by George A. Gelston.

Willful desertion was charged by the libellant, but the court found that the husband had been in the habit of spending more time with his mother and father and sisters than with his wife.

It was also shown that the wife had urged that they move some place out of reach of the relatives of her husband, that she wanted him to herself. In this the court upheld her and refused Gelston the divorce asked.

ROW OVER BABY'S FOOD LEADS TO DIVORCE COURT

CHICAGO, June 22.—Differences over the baby's food opened the door of the divorce court to Norma McL Joyce Prentiss today.

She appeared before Judge McEwen in her suit against James Eugene Prentiss, of Melrose Highlands, a suburb of Boston. With teething, the baby became ill, and a physician summoned by Mrs. Prentiss prescribed a diet for the child. Mrs. Prentiss endeavored to follow the advice of the physician, but at this point trouble began.

Sweetmeats offered the girl by her father were accepted by her, but Mrs. Prentiss objected.

"Remember what the doctor has said," warned the wife.

"Oh, never mind the doctor," Prentiss retorted. "He doesn't know what's good for babies."

"Because I insisted he beat me," testified the wife. "I would talk to him and he would get angry, then beat me."

SOME FIGURES

There was a young woman from Skye,
Who was shaped like a capital I.
She said: "It's too bad, but then I can pad!"—
Which shows you that figures can lie.

QUESTIONS FOR AN ENGAGED GIRL TO ASK HERSELF

Do I love him more than anything else in the world? Am I quite sure on this point? I would do well to remember the words of a great writer who said: "If you have the least doubt about it, do not marry. The married state is either very happy or very miserable."

If he lost the fortune or position he now possesses, should I be as anxious to marry him as I am now? Shall I care for him just the same if he never achieves a higher position than he occupies at present?

Do I look upon marriage merely as a means for the attainment of a home of my own, and a more important standing in the world?

Is there sympathy—not necessarily similarity—between us on matters of taste, politics, ambitions, and so on?

Does he treat his mother, sisters, and the women of his family with courtesy and kindness, or is he careless and uncivil to them, reserving his attentions altogether for new acquaintances? If so, is there not a fear that when the novelty of a wife has worn off he will treat me as he now treats his own family?

WINS BRIDE AFTER HE HAD COURTED HER 20 YEARS

Parents of Mount Holly Woman Opposed Union of School-Day Sweethearts for Two Decades.

MOUNT HOLLY, N. Y., June 22.—A known merchant

The courtship had been opposed by the parents of the bride since its beginning in their childhood school days. Miss Cronk has always been very popular in social circles, and has won the admiration of a host of acquaintances.

SPANK GIRLS, JURY SAYS

AURORA, Ill., June 22.—"We, the jury, find that Miss Hattie Briggs and Miss Dorothy Tillotson should each be taken from this courtroom and well and truly spanked," was the verdict of a jury which Judge Van Osdale set aside today as unconstitutional. The Misses Briggs and Tillotson, each of whom is preetty, 18, and the daughter of wealthy parents, were accordingly not taken out and "well and truly spanked" as the jurors directed.

Miss Briggs had been accused of assault and battery by her former friend and confidante, Miss Tillotson, whose name had been omitted from the guests at a party given by Miss Briggs. The hostess was discharged.

BRIDAL COUPLE KIDNAPED IN GRIMY OLD ICE WAGON

Friends in Hot Pursuit for Half a Mile After Leaving Rectory Before Capture Is Made.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., June 22.—Kidnaped on their wedding night was the experience of Mrs. Nellie White and Henry Ryno, who were married at the rectory of St. Peter's Church at 8 o'clock last night by Mr. O'Grady.

Just before the ceremony an ice wagon, with a crowd of men, stopped in front of the door. The bride and groom hastened out the back way soon afterward.

The bride, gathering up her white bridal dress, ran, her husband following. They were caught half a mile away. They were surrounded by friends to prevent escape until the ice wagon arrived, when kind hands lifted them into the dirty vehicle.

They were taken in it to a hotel in Highland Park, where there was a big reception by the employees of the ice firm, of which the bridegroom is a member.

THE MEDDLER

JUNE WEDDINGS

Really one must be forgiven for harping upon some very well-worn strings when there is as little doing in a social way as there has been this week. The event of the week was the marriage on Wednesday of Miss Mae Sadler and Lewis Risdon Mead at Christ Church, Alameda. The bride has proved her popularity by the number of entertainments which have been given in her honor, no bride for a long time having been the recipient of so many social favors. There was a train of bridesmaids and a matron of honor. Miss Winifred Burdge, herself soon to be a bride, was one of the most attractive of the bride's attendants. An evening or two before the wedding Miss Sadler entertained her bridesmaids at dinner, presented them with their favors and, after dinner, the party adjourned to Christ Church for the customary rehearsal. The matron of honor received a heart-shaped locket set with pearls and the favored maids cunning little four-leaf clover brooches with pearl centers.

Many new gowns are being made and expensive presents purchased and many plans are being made for Miss Gertrude Allen's wedding, which is to be quite a large affair after all. Miss Allen has been so indefatigable in her plans for others that all this bread cast on the waters is returning to her in the form of cake and is making these last days before her wedding very gay and delightful ones indeed.

ILLNESS IN THE HALL FAMILY.

Adding to the anxiety felt concerning Miss Myra Hall, who has been ill with rheumatism of the heart for over three weeks, comes the news that Miss Hall's father, Frederick Hall, is suffering from a broken knee cap and is confined to his bed. It is doubtful if Mr. Hall will be able to attend the Bohemian Club jinks this year even in the event of Miss Hall's speedy recovery. Mr. Hall has been president of the Bohemian Club during the two most strenuous years of its history. He has worked hard, but has had an uphill time of it. He is a most popular president, however, and thousands of well-wishers are hoping for his speedy recovery and the safe convalescence of his daughter. Mr. Hall has been a devoted father to his two motherless children and the trio are most closely united. It has been nothing unusual to see Mr. Hall sitting with the chaplains at the young people's dances, and he seemed rather to enjoy it.

MRS. FISKE'S SUCCESS.

Mrs. Fiske has met with such success in her presentation of that intensely comical play, "The New York Idea," that she gave three extra matinees this week and many persons who had been unable to see her last week hastened to take advantage of the extra performances.

Mrs. Fiske is much less nervous than on her last appearance here and consequently her enunciation is much improved. She can now be heard all over the house. She had large and fashionable audiences during her entire first week, including the extra matinee which she gave on Thursday. On one of the mid-week nights the boxes were occupied by the Burlingame set, including Mr. and Mrs. Walter Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Murphy, Miss Virginia Jolliffe, Mr. Lawson, Thornwell Mulally, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Eastland, Miss Mary Jolliffe and Miss Gertrude Jolliffe.

Mrs. Fiske has, as always, surrounded herself with a company of excellent players and George Mason is well cast as the horsey husband. Dudley Clinton does one of the best character bits ever seen on a local stage in his portrayal of the part of a "smart" rector of the Church of England ready to marry anybody providing they belong to his social set. He says unctuously "That might be if they were sinners—but I meet so few sinners." George Arliss does an excellent piece of work as the Englishman, Sir Wilfred Cates-Dorby (and, I am told, is simply himself in the act. He makes Sir Wilfred a bit of a bouncer but, doubtless, his manners are tinged by what Sir Wilfred considers proper in the smart New York set in which he finds himself. Of the women, Miss Marion Lee is the best. Her work as Mrs. Vile, Philimore is excellent—a sort of modern Circe, and the work is so well done that one is unable to decide how much is acting and how much the real character of the actress. Miss Lee is, in private life, Mrs. Langdon Mitchell, the wife of the author of the play. She wears some beautiful costumes and, in the bouffant scene, has the center of the stage for a long time. She has a slow, insinuating smile, a velvet voice and a sinuous figure. She also wears some magnificent costumes in which she completely eclipses the star in looks. Miss Emily Stevens, the ingenue, is Mrs. Fiske's niece, and she gives a comical illustration of that dramatic delivery which is sometimes called "the fish face."

MOTORED TO SANTA CRUZ.

Richard M. Hotelling motored to Santa Cruz last Saturday, having as guests in his machine Mr. and Mrs. Charles Conlisk and Dr. and Mrs. Russell Cook. The party stayed at the Sea Beach Hotel for some days and Mr. Hotelling was present at the opening of the new beach pavilion, in which he is financially interested.

TROUBLE AT THE CLAREMONT CLUB.

Rumors of the dissatisfaction at the Claremont Country Club are still rife in the air and one hopes sincerely that they may not deepen into something which may be uncomfortable for the members.

One hears that while all the members pay their dues, of course, the club is literally owned by a few. That would be a great pity in a city as large as ours, and in a club which might be as prosperous as the Claremont Country Club. Little details are being given out, but the club is in a state of confusion.

Fiske's mannerisms, especially those which used to be most offensive, without having one spark of her relative's talent. She has the nervous shrugging of the shoulder until she is all out of shape and you cannot understand one word she says. Fortunately her part is not at all important. She is a jarring note in a delightful performance.

ance and she ought to be sent to bed without her supper for doing so badly. Mrs. Fiske has been staying at the Fairmount and has been the recipient of considerable social attention.

MAUDE ADAMS' "PETER PAN."

Maude Adams' "Peter Pan" has packed the Van Ness Theater for two weeks with two matinees a week and in consequence three extra nights and a matinee for next week have been announced. The rest of the week will be devoted to Barrie's charming play, "Quality Street," which has never been seen here, and week after next to a translation of Rostand's "L'Aiglon."

Miss Adams is giving this extra fortnight to San Francisco by way of recognition of San Francisco's uniform treatment of her. She has never played to anything but crowded houses there. She will play a long engagement at the Macdonough, which is far superior to the Van Ness Theater. On Saturday of last week Mrs. William H. Crocker gave a matinee party at which she entertained twenty-two guests in honor of her daughter Helen. The matinee party was preceded by a big luncheon at the Fairmont. The table decorations were in red and pink sweet peas—great shaded bunches of them—and the effect was charming. Some sixteen of the guests were children of Helen Crocker's age, mostly from Burlingame. The remainder of the guests was made up of mothers. Later the party occupied boxes at the delightful fairy play.

TRAVELERS IN ITALY.

According to letters received this week Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Curtiss are in Naples, having just returned from Tivoli and Amalfi, while Mr. and Mrs. George Sperry were, on May 31, in Venice, where they intended to remain for a fortnight or more. They found Florence too hot and dusty and did not remain there more than a week. Their next stopping place will be Paris.

DEATH OF H. K. FIELD.

The sudden death of Henry K. Field has cast a pall over Alameda society. Mr. Field has been in indifferent health for some years, but his demise was entirely unexpected. He was a very genial and lovable man and leaves many friends and a large family to mourn his loss. Mr. Field has been for many years the Pacific Coast representative of the new England Mutual Life Insurance Company and his eldest son, Charles K. Field, will succeed him in that position. The Fields have resided for many years in Paris street, Alameda, and the handsome family home is one of the show places of the neighborhood. Mr. Field leaves a widow, four grown sons and a daughter.

CALIFORNIA IN SOCIAL AFFAIRS.

Californians are very much in social affairs both in the East and in Europe. In Berlin Ambassador and Mrs. Charles K. Field are to entertain Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Carnegie during the Kiel yachting week. The Towers are to present the Carnegies to Emperor William.

MR. TOWER HAS TRAVELED FAR AND HAS SEEN MUCH SINCE THE DAYS WHEN SHE WAS NEILLE SMITH, LIVING QUIETLY HERE IN OAKLAND. NOW SHE HAS SOME OF THE MOST MAGNIFICENT JEWELS IN EUROPE, AND THE MOST SENSATIONAL AND THE MOST

court in Berlin. One hears she is quite unspoiled and Americans could tell many stories of her great generosity. She is always ready to give a helping hand to any American who needs it, and many a pretty gown finds its way to some young American girl to whom it is a welcome boon.

An American like Mrs. Tower can do much to uphold the standards of American women, so Californians ought to be very proud of the record she is making abroad.

There were many Americans present last week at the grand steeplechases in France. The races last for eight days, beginning at Antenil and ending with the Grand Prix de Paris at Longchamps.

It is the most brilliant spectacle to be seen in all Europe—women from all over the world gorgeously gowned. Here is a brilliant spectacle of wonderful light costumes, and big hats with plumes or covered with flowers. White was the prevailing tone and white lace the favored fabric. One reads that the hats were simply enormous.

One of the most beautiful women at the races was Mrs. Edward Moore of Philadelphia, who was formerly Sheda Torbert, of San Francisco.

Mrs. Peter Martin was there also, and she was beautifully gowned. The Peter-Martins are not coming to San Francisco this summer, but have taken a cottage at Newport instead.

NEW YORK AFFAIR.

In New York one of the most important social events was the wedding of Albert Gray and Miss Marian Fish. The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, and Mrs. Fish is, as everyone knows, New York's great social leader. She is a very brilliant woman, and she says exactly what she pleases, as a consequence of which she is quoted all over the United States. One of her famous remarks is said to have cost her husband dear, for it precipitated the big railroad fight between Fish and Harriman, which cost Fish the presidency of the big railroad combine. Mrs. Fish is just as fearless as of old and plans entertainments original and unique both in New York and at the Crossways, her beautiful Newport home.

At the wedding were Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt Jr. and Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs, the two Californians who have achieved such pronounced social success in eastern circles. Mrs. Oelrichs's gift to the bride was a superb pearl dog collar with diamond slides, and Mrs. Vanderbilt sent her a huge sapphire ring set with diamonds. Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish gave an informal reception to which intimate friends only were asked to see the wedding presents of her daughter.

JOHNSONS SELL THEIR HOME.

Mr. and Mrs. William Pierce Johnson recently sold the home on Prospect Heights in which they have lived for so many years. Since the sale of their home they have been at the Claremont Country Club, but they are planning to leave town in the near future, for a short stay at Catalina Island. They will spend the summer at the Country Club.

Mr. Frank Havens has arrived at Sag Harbor, and the family is settled there for the summer. They will spend four months at Sag Harbor, and will not return to California until October.

They spend delightful days, yachting on Long Island Sound, and they have swift motor cars which take them on delightful expeditions through the picturesque and charming woods for which the East is famous.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

There are always interesting news notes from Washington, where the Metcalfs continue to be the center of much in a social way.

One reads of them in society notes in regard to their recent trip to Jamestown.

After rather an eventful trip, Secretary Metcalf and party returned to Washington at 11 o'clock today. Almost from the first Secretary Metcalf encountered delays. The Dolphin did not get away from the navy yard until late in the afternoon, the plan being to leave in the morning.

Besides Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Vanderbilt, there were on board Mrs. Metcalf and Miss Chabot, a friend of the Secretary's family. After experiencing a good deal of bad weather, the Dolphin arrived in Hampton Roads. Tuesday the party made a trip up the James river to a point thirty miles beyond Jamestown Island.

Much fog, heavy rains and generally thick weather made the navigation of the tortuous James river difficult. They were not able to return to the Dolphin until yesterday afternoon. No apprehension was felt at the Navy Department.

And again: "Mr. and Mrs. George Vanderbilt, who were the guests of the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Metcalf on the latter's trip to Jamestown, did not remain in Washington on their return. They were driven to the railway station from the boat, leaving at noon for New York. Tomorrow they will go to Newport, where they expect to pass the summer. Mrs. Metcalf will remain in Washington until the first week in July, when she expects to go to California for an absence of several months."

vacation days passed in Southern California. They spent some days in Los Angeles, and at the Potter, and Doctor Passa returned to town, rested by the much-needed vacation days.

MRS. DORNIN IN THE COUNTRY.

Mrs. George Dornin and Miss Helen Dornin are in Inverness, where they have a very picturesque and charming little summer home. The Hugh Craigs have also a very interesting summer home in Inverness, in which they entertain friends during the summer.

INTERESTING VISITOR AT BERKELEY.

Among the interesting visitors at Berkeley this summer is Mrs. Frances Fearn of New Orleans, for whom many complimentary affairs are being planned by friends on both sides of the bay.

Mrs. Fearn is the widow of the late Walker Fearn, Ambassador to Greece and Egypt.

Mrs. Fearn is a noted philanthropist, being especially kind to the blind. She is an intimate friend of Queen Elizabeth of Roumania.

Mrs. Fearn plans to go to Del Monte and Los Angeles en route to New York and the large eastern cities where she will spend the summer.

YOUNGER GIRLS OUT OF TOWN.

Many of the younger set of girls are out of town for the entire summer, and those who remain are having a very good time, visiting each other quite informally. Pretty Miss Avis Sterling is with the Frank Havens at Sag Harbor. She is a very sweet, unspoiled girl, who is going to develop into something very much worth while.

The Misses Aline and Josephine Johnson are going to Catalina Island, where they will spend some pleasant July days.

Miss Charlotte Hall will be at Felton this year as usual, for the Halls always go to the Santa Cruz mountains as soon as the schools close here.

Miss Jessie Craig is in Honolulu, and will spend the entire summer in the islands. She went down to the islands in a sailing vessel, and had a delightful trip.

Miss Patty Chickering is in the East where she is the guest of friends, and she will probably go abroad before returning to Oakland. She will be away six months.

Miss Gladys Coffin, one of the most popular of the girls of the younger set, is also in the East, where she is the guest of friends.

Miss Carmen Sutton is abroad this summer, and Miss Marie and Miss Marguerite Butters are to spend a large part of the summer in the Alps. The Butters will have headquarters at Geneva, where they know many people, who make life very delightful for them in the long charming summer days.

Miss Katherine Brown is going to Portland, early in July, and will be away from town at least two months.

Miss Anita Thomson and Mrs. John Connors recently returned from a delightful stay in Southern California, their visit to the sunny south including Coronado and Los Angeles.

RESTAURANT HABIT.

A glance at any of our leading restaurants at the dinner hours will show how surely Oakland is developing "the restaurant habit." One might halt it with joy, for "the restaurant habit" was one of the charms of old San Francisco.

A man who knows things, and has traveled far said recently: "If you wish to keep all this great population which has so suddenly come to you, amuse the people. People will stay where they are amused." It is quite true, there is a big play element in man, which must find expression.

We are doing our best with all these new hotels and restaurants, and with our theaters, cheap and otherwise. Apropos of restaurants, an amusing article appears in London regarding "restaurant manners." Human nature is much the same the world over, and "restaurant manners" as they exist in London, are seen here in much the same fashion. "It is really amusing to watch the behavior of smart folk in restaurants. Both sexes seem to adopt a quite peculiar and modern habit of talk, walk and behavior, which has been christened the restaurant manner."

Watch the people as they come in. The women have a curious gait from the hips, something between a glide and a trip. They keep the upper part of the body rigid and sit as though glued in steel. (Perhaps it is.) They sit down at their table with a sharp, ungracious jerk. Their expression the while is self-conscious. They may be talking all the time, but it is quite safe to hazard the guess that they have not the slightest idea of what they are talking about. Their thoughts are elsewhere, and it is quite certain that they would be able to reel off a complete and accurate catalogue of the complete London, London, London.

They are not the slightest idea of what they are talking about. Their thoughts are elsewhere, and it is quite certain that they would be able to reel off a complete and accurate catalogue of the complete London, London, London.

religious convictions and social status of every woman they have passed in the restaurant between the entrance and their table.

The men, too, in their way, have several marked characteristics. To begin with, it is a peculiar fact that in coming into a restaurant ninety-nine men out of a hundred have one of two alternative expressions.

Either their scowl betokens general dissatisfaction with the world and its wife, or else they wear a fatuous smile of bland inanity, which is the modern method of implying that one is quite at one's ease, and does this sort of thing every night and likes it.

He does not seem to get quite normal till the entire makes its appearance, and not always then! So much for restaurant manners in London, and one cannot but think they have their counterpart on this far Western Coast.

AN ELABORATE TEA.

One of the largest and most elaborate teas of the early summer was given by Mrs. Roland Letts Oliver at her attractive little home on Vernon Heights. The Oliviers recently returned from Tonopah, and the luncheon was given in honor of Mrs. F. M. Smith and Mrs. George Jensen.

The latter is one of the very attractive brides of the year, and the Jensens, who have recently returned from their wedding trip, are now comfortably established in their own attractive home in the Adams Point district.

The tea was a farewell affair also for Mrs. F. M. Smith, as the Smith's close Arbor Villa next week, and go to their summer home on Shelton Island.

Over a hundred friends called during the afternoon and the tea represented an interesting and bright gathering. The house was beautifully decorated, and dainty refreshments were served under the special direction of Mrs. George Hallahan.

In the evening there was an elaborate dinner, at which covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. William Letts Oliver, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. George Jensen, Miss Carolyn Oliver, Miss Grace Sperry, Miss Marian Ellis, Miss Zabriskie, Miss Winifred Burdge, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Belden, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Seales, Ralph Jones.

CAPTAIN AND MRS. EDGER SAIL.

Captain and Mrs. Benjamin Edger, formerly Edith Downing, sailed for the Philippines last week. Since their marriage over a year ago, the Edgers have been living in Texas, where Captain Edger was assigned to duty.

GUEST OF MISS PALMER.

Miss Bessie Palmer had as her guest for a few days Mrs. Richardson, who was formerly Miss Elsie Gregory. Mrs. Richardson makes her home now in the Santa Cruz mountains, where her brother has extensive fruit interests. She is very bright in a business way and is an able assistant to her brother.

MRS. GORRILL RETURNS.

Mrs. Ida Gorrell and her mother, Mrs. Hitchcock, have returned to town after a stay of some days in Los Gatos.

MISS TOUCHARD TO LEAVE.

The Misses Touchard will leave the latter part of the week for the East and Europe, intending to make a long stay abroad. They will travel extensively on the continent, and they are planning to spend the winter in Paris and Rome.

MRS. HEATH TO GO AWAY.

Mrs. John Heath and her children will leave next week for their very picturesque country home near Pacific Grove. It is a most interesting place, on the famous Seventeen Mile Drive, and they are planning to spend the entire summer there.

Mrs. Kinsleinleka, who is Mrs. Heath's friend, will accompany the family. She has a superb voice, and is one of the finest singers on the coast. Her beautiful contralto voice has had rare cultivation abroad, making her an altogether charming musician, one of the most accomplished singers about the bay.

PICTURES IN THE MEDDLER.

Miss Elizabeth Dufficy and Miss Carolyn Dinsmore are two attractive brides-to-be.

Mrs. Clarence Martin Mann entertained recently at an elaborate dinner for State Senator Lukens.

Miss Mabel McNally, a charming young society girl, who is popular on both sides of the bay.

MISS MAHONEY GO ON TRIP.

The Misses Emma and Louise Mahoney went to Cleveland this week, and they expect to spend some weeks at the summer at McQueen. The Misses Mahoney have spent the entire winter at the Hotel Athens.

They are both so popular and have so many dear friends that they are greatly missed when they are out of town for any length of time.

BACK FROM WEDDING TRIP.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Brown, formerly Mrs. Florence Allen, have returned from their wedding trip, and are at the home of Mrs. Brown Senior in Alameda. They are planning to build their permanent home at Piedmont.

MRS. CHICKERING GOES EAST.

Mrs. William H. Chickering and Miss Patty Chickering left recently for the East and Europe, going abroad on one of the slow steamers, which is and has many fast boats, especially the Effort, the big sloop which seems to be holding its own against anything that can be built to beat it.

One reads in eastern notes of the Effort:

"The King's Cup winner Effort won principal honors in the New York Yacht Club spring regatta yesterday over the 19.4-mile course on Long Island Sound off Glen Cove. She covered the course in the best time of any boat in the fleet, led her class home by a big margin, and altogether performed splendidly. She was handled again by Addison Hanan, who got everything out of her to be got."

MR. AND MRS. SHIELDS RENT HOME.

Mr. and Mrs. William Lybham Shields have rented their Jackson street home for a year, and are planning to go to Margaret and Irene Sheehan, and the flower girls are to be the two little daughters of Mrs. Inez Shorb White.

There is to be a large church wedding, followed by an elaborate reception at the Fairmont.

ORRIN PECK ABROAD.

Foremost among the Californians abroad who are achieving success is Orrin Peck, whose beautiful portrait painting is placing him in the front rank of artists in London.

Orrin Peck, and Miss Janet Peck went to Europe three years ago, and with their mother, Mrs. Peck, have made their home in London.

They have not returned to San Francisco for a visit, but are quite happy in their English home, where they are the center of a charming group of friends.

Orrin Peck and his sister, Miss Janet Peck, are planning to spend part of the month of June in Paris.

MISS WELLMAN'S VACATION.

Miss Ray Wellman has gone to Sausalito and will spend part of the summer there with Mrs. Carl Schoonmaker, formerly Jean Howard.

Miss Wellman is a friend from school days of Mrs. Schoonmaker, and she will be able to be most helpful in these early days of the great sorrow caused by the sudden passing of Mr. Schoonmaker.

PRESIDENT WHEELER IN EAST.

President and Mrs. Benjamin Ide Wheeler have been recently in New York City, but are coming to the coast in the near future.

The Charles Stetson Wheelers have gone to "The Bend," their country home on the McCloud river, and they always have as their guests for part of each summer the Benjamin Ide Wheelers. The Wheelers have taken with them their Thomas Flyer motor car, for there are now some charming roads, through magnificent scenery, in the McCloud neighborhood. One road, seventeen miles long, was built by the people who have summer homes on the river. It is a splendid automobile road through some of the finest scenery in the world, and it is to be given to the State.

ENGAGEMENT OF INTEREST.

An engagement of interest to many Oakland people was recently announced, that of Miss Edith McCabe and Mr. Ernest McCormick.

The McCabes lived in Oakland for many years and came here from Contra Costa county, where the family had extensive landed interests.

A few months ago Roy McCabe, brother of the bride-elect, married Miss Edith Gaskill, and they are living in the old family home of the McCabes in Contra Costa.

Miss Edith McCabe is a very pretty girl of the blonde type of beauty. She was formerly a member of the Friday Night Club, and she has been very popular in social circles across the bay, where she has lived with her mother.

Miss McCabe recently returned from an extended trip in Europe.

The pretty bride-elect was the guest of honor this week at a dinner given by William Huff, at the Huff residence on Steiner street. At the dinner were Miss McCabe and Mr. McCormick, Miss Lucie King, Miss Marietta Havens, Miss Edith Cutter, Arthur Cheesborough, Joe King, Percy King, and the host, William Huff.

The wedding of Miss McCabe and Mr. McCormick will be one of the social events of September.

TAKE HOME IN MILL VALLEY.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Stephenson have taken a home in Mill Valley and will spend the summer there.

Mrs. Hetty Stephenson will be with them, and they are also entertaining Mr. Stephenson's sister, who is here from Tennessee.

WILL GO TO COUNTRY.

Mrs. Robert Knight and her little daughter are planning to spend some time this summer at Mrs. Chabot's country home near St. Helena.

Little Miss Knight is just recovering from an attack of the measles, and her little cousins, the Dunnes, have them also. And by the way, what an inopportune time the measles have taken for appearing in our midst! Just as many families were preparing to go away, now that the schools have closed, the younger children are, as their mothers say, "down with the measles"—and those whom the measles have spared seem to be in the grip of the whooping cough.

So many plans for the country outing have gone glimmering this year—before the dread foe of the family measles and whooping cough.

GO INTO CAMP.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Walter Scott, with Mrs. Rynders and Miss Adele Scott, have just gone into camp on the Russian river, where they expect to be all summer.

They call their camp "Eagle's Nest" and they have established it for many years past, so they have one of the most complete encampments on the coast. They always entertain friends, so "Eagle's Nest" has established a great reputation for hospitality. The Scotts have with them this year their steam White motor car, so they will have delightful trips through the Russian river country.

PROBLEM OF YEAR.

One of the big problems of each year is of course "summer reading," and one almost dreads to open one's mail lest it contain the usual request for "a list of books to read in summer."

As though any one could ever make out a list of books for any one else. There are the people who want to make up in summer the reading they ought to have done in the winter. They are the kind of people who get on your nerves because they want to "improve their minds." Of one thing we are firmly convinced—one should never improve one's mind in the summer! A friend writes in regard to a business man going off for a month:

"Of course it will be sure to rain—no matter how dry the season, it always rains when the business man goes off for a month. So he prepared for the inevitable with what he calls 'some rattling good stories.' He never buys any book unless it has a frontispiece. There must be a girl or at least a motor car in it, though he will put up with a hotel bar or a crowded tennis court!"

Veranda reading is usually done aloud by one of the population, while the rest sew on some thin stuff.

But it is my own private conviction that it isn't necessary to read a book in order to be happy with it. You just have it in your lap, you know—and then you spend your time looking idly out at the world around you—at the distant hills—at the far horizon—or you watch the breakers rolling in from the ocean, each one telling a new story as it breaks high on the shore.

There is a deep fascination in a summer's afternoon on the beach, with the book one loves best lying unopened on one's lap!

AND THEN THE ROW BEGAN.

The landlords may oppress us, the tenants may oppress us, but we will not let them oppress us. An' if we howl a meeting they may send us all to jail; On every hill in Oakland a bonfire glows tonight. For Croker was the Derby, put the Sassenach to flight.

Clancy—"Roise it, Mike! Roise it! They can't hear ye across the street."

Callahan—"Thru for ye, Clancy. Go on, Mike. You're doin' all right."

All glory be to Croker, he is Irish through and through; He's done a hump for Oireland, with his thirty-six an' two.

He shot a horse to England and the others also ran. So let us drain a bumper to that dear old Connaught man.

Clancy—"With all due respect, Mike, you're a liar, so you are."

Mike—"In what respect, may I ask, Mr. Clancy?"

Clancy—"Croker is a Munsterer. Mike, I knew his father before him."

363,828 IN SAN FRANCISCO WILL SOON PAY SAN PABLO AVE.

School Census Shows That Large Property Owners Have 77,367 Children Are Receiving Instruction.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 22.—Estimating four percent for each child in San Francisco up to the age of seven years, the compilation of School Superintendent S. W. Beckett, gives this city a population of $363,828.

The final figures were compiled yesterday and submitted to the board of education and Superintendent of Schools Ronconvier.

The census this year was taken with great care, as the amount of money to be received from the State is based on the number of pupils of school age. The final figures show that there are in the city of San Francisco 76,589 white children of school age. The sexes are nearly evenly divided, there being 38,401 boys and 38,188 girls, between the ages of 5 and 17 years.

ONE INDIAN ONLY.
Of the negro race attending school, there are 31 only, 27 boys and 4 girls. Children of Oriental parentage who enjoy educational privileges number 726, of whom 459 are boys and 267 girls. There is one Indian only attending the schools, which makes a grand total of 77,367.

In 1906 the school census showed a school attendance of 101,000. The total of all children in San Francisco up to the age of 17 years is 90,957. Last year there were 120,000.

On this census figures the city this year will receive as its apportionment from the State $523,750 for the support of the schools, whereas last year it was about $750,000.

Relays to Play The Vallejo Nine
The Relays journey to Vallejo tomorrow to cross bats with the home team and a great game is predicted. There is no doubt that the Relays are one of the fastest amateur teams in San Francisco, as their record of winning five out of nine games has not been equaled by any other club leaving the city. Manager Schwartz has a team of players who follow: (captain); Smith, second base; Menser, left field, M. Goldy, first base; Muhl, third base; Perkins, catcher; Molly, center field, H. Goldy, pitcher; White, right field. For games address L. Schwartz, 1403 Chestnut street, Oakland.

Miss May Sutton at Last in Luck
As a result of the draws at Wimbledon yesterday Miss May Sutton, the great American woman tennis player, is almost sure of a place in the finals. As the American fans fared badly in the draw English tennis experts opine that Miss Sutton will come off with the highest honors in the play off.

Unk Russell Now Training Hard
VALLEJO, June 22.—Unk Russell of Philadelphia, who is to meet Herberts here on the afternoon of the Fourth of July, has arrived in the city and will commence training at once. Herberts is now training for the battle in Napa Valley, where he comes to the fore as one of the best 140-pound boys in the east.

OAKLAND'S PROSPECTS WERE NEVER BRIGHTER

RECENT TRANSFORMATION SCENE ON TWENTY-SIXTH STREET, BETWEEN ADELINE AND LINDEN STREETS

BIG BREWERY AND OUTBUILDINGS COVERING TWO BLOCKS BETWEEN LINDEN AND ADELINE STREETS.

BIG APARTMENT HOUSE WHICH IS BEING BUILT ON THE NORTHWEST CORNER OF LINDEN AND TWENTY-SIXTH STREETS.

Latest Improvements Which Are in Course of Development on the Western End of Twenty-Sixth Street.

The western end of Twenty-sixth has been recently undergoing a remarkable transformation. Until lately it has been a neglected section of the city, sparsely settled with an inferior class of dwellings. Now it is a scene of great industrial activity. The two blocks between Linden and Adeline are undergoing a complete change. On the block on the south side of Twenty-sixth west of Linden street the massive castellated structure of the Oakland Brewing and Malt Company has been erected, and on the same side of Twenty-sixth on the next block lying east of Adeline the storage plant and stables of the same company are undergoing construction. All of these buildings are built of wood, but stuccoed with cement mortar on the outside, and present a very handsome appearance. And on the northwest corner of Linden and Twenty-sixth streets a big three-story apartment house is being built by M. J. Olmstead.

The accompanying halftone reproductions of photographs taken of these improvements tell the story of the growth and transformation of this part of West Oakland more eloquently than words can describe. There can be no mistaking the effect which such massive and costly improvements and the location there of such big industrial enterprises have produced on the value of neighboring property, which has hitherto been regarded as worth comparatively little. It is one of the significant signs of the times which are these days springing into existence everywhere throughout Oakland—all pointing unmistakably to its ultimate development into one of the greatest, if not the greatest city on the Pacific Coast.

COMBINATIONS FORMING WHICH ARE STIFFENING THE REAL ESTATE MARKET

Prospects of a Rapid Advance in Prices All Along the Line Were Never Brighter Than They Are Now.

Many things are just now combining to give a stronger tone to the real estate market in the very near future than it has ever possessed. There has been more or less floundering and speculation in the past concerning the permanent business center of Oakland. There can be no doubt in any one's mind now where the bank and hotel center of the town will permanently continue to be. This is positively defined already. And the wholesale and retail quarters are gradually assuming definite shape.

MARKET HEALTHY.

The real estate market is unquestionably in a healthy condition. Sales may not be so numerous, but they are numerous enough to show that the market is in full working order, and that everybody associated with it is alert. Owners of property are holding tenaciously to what they possess with a firm conviction that a material advance on present prices all along the line is imminent. They are waiting for the legitimate outcome of the maturity of the plans for big local improvement. Indicative of this tenacity, the effect of a street rumor during the past week may be cited. From a source which the TRIBUNE has hitherto found to be strictly trustworthy the information was obtained that the Havens property on Clay street between Eleventh and Twelfth streets or the Blake property fronting on Clay, had been sold at a good figure. It was essential, however, that the report should be verified, and the agents for the Blake and Havens blocks were at once interviewed.

"Not a word of truth in it," was the prompt reply. "Moreover, I will say that not a foot of either property is for sale at any price." Property owners in all parts of the city have a juster appreciation of land values now than they had formerly. Fortunes have been made during the past twelve months by those who were shrewd enough to size up the situation. There are larger fortunes to be made in the future by investment in property, for everything points to a higher and nearer range of true values than now prevails in most parts of the city. The outlook was never brighter.

ON THE WESTERN FRONT.

Along the western frontage of the city developments are taking place which the observant student of matters affecting real estate values and prospective conditions cannot have failed to have noticed. But the major part of the population of the city is, nevertheless, apparently unconscious of what is taking place under their very noses. The activity of three railroad corporations in that quarter ought to arouse interest, if it does nothing more. The railroad companies have taken notice and are taking time by the forelock. Two of them, at least, have acquired vast property interests on the western shore.

The Western Pacific has acquired a majority frontage on Wood street from the Point to Emeryville. It is represented, without any blowing of horns or any public knowledge of its operations, in the same way as it acquired property rights along Third street from the north arm of the estuary and in East Oakland, in order to secure the right of way for its future freight yards at the foot of Union street. And the Santa Fe has acquired, in the same way, large property interests on Twentieth street to Adeline, where it is planned to erect a large central passenger and freight depot. But these railroad movements are predicated on something else which is gradually developing and which most people have so far overlooked. There is a vast area adjacent to the western frontage which has been greatly neglected in the past—a vast area of un reclaimed marsh land, and a still larger area of land sparsely settled and only partly covered with improvements of the cheapest and least prepossessing order. Throughout this district industrial colonization has started in spots widely spread apart at present, but as sure to run together in future as there is a future in store for the city. The TRIBUNE presents today one of these developments. It represents a great manufacturing plant which has taken root in a section where the value of land was low, the character of the improvements very cheap and inferior. It is today isolated, but quite close to the routes which three railroads have mapped out for occupation and within rifle shot of the tracks now operated by the Southern Pacific; and as one industry installed in any particular locality invariably attracts others, the same thing will happen here. And all along the western belt from the northern county line beyond West Berkeley to the entrance to the harbor and thence to the Fruitvale line on the San Leandro and San Antonio tidal canal other spots have been occupied by important industries. Surely no one who gives the matter thought can fail to recognize the fact that it is only a question of time—and of a short time, considering the rapidity with which events are occurring—when these will run together and constitute one unbroken chain of productive industries, giving employment to untold thousands of skilled workers and to unlimited capital. The managers of the railroads terminating here see plainly what is coming and they are preparing for it. It does not need the spirit of prophecy to predict what this development will do to realty values.

THE BIG HOTEL.

The erection of the new Oakland hotel, which our enterprising leading bankers planned and successfully promoted, being now removed from the domain of doubt and included among those human enterprises which are classed as a positive certainty, has cleared the atmosphere surrounding a large area within the heart of the city. Values of realty there have become as stable, in consequence, as banknotes. Those necessary delays, incident to the preparation of the plans of such a big enterprise, naturally attended the timid and gavel tongue to doubtful Thomases, which this community, like every other in existence, is not wholly free from, although the tribe is as nearly exterminated here as it is probably possible to exterminate anywhere.

NOW A POSITIVE REALITY.

But the big caravansary is now in sight as a positive reality. The land on which it will stand was bought and paid for months ago. All of the buildings which formerly occupied it have been removed to remote quarters of the city. The contract for excavating the 31,000 cubic yards of earth contained in the basement for the laying of the vast foundations of the solid and beautiful earthquake and fireproof structure is in process of fulfillment. The money to pay for the completed structure is on deposit in the banks. The plans are being hastened by Architect Hardenbergh of New York to completion. They are expected to be ready to put into effect as soon as the excavation is finished, and every facility has been provided by and for the contractors to accomplish that result in the briefest time possible. The city gets the benefit of the material which will be taken out of it, as the dump is city property located at the northern extremity of the northeastern arm of Lake Merritt, which is to be reclaimed and laid out as a beautiful park, to constitute a part of an elaborate system of public beauty spots which will be expeditiously developed and which will constitute a priceless inheritance to posterity.

EFFECT ON LAND VALUES.

It will be observed from this that that the influence of the big hotel—the largest and most handsome of its class in the Far West—will be far-reaching. It will constitute the nucleus of large and costly private improvements more or less intimately associated with it. Some of these are now on the way; the plans for others are ready to be carried out; still others are in embryo, but so well defined that their maturity is assured. Land values over a large area surrounding the hotel site are, therefore, sure to soar—to what point it would be rash for any one now to attempt to forecast. But this result is as inevitable as the erection of the hotel is a certainty. And from the hotel site to the railroad strung along the southern water front the same thing is sure to happen. Nothing can prevent it. The railroad companies which have made Oakland their western terminus are hurrying the work of putting their respective properties in order to meet the conditions which are beginning to manifest themselves clearly in the course of Oakland's growth and progress, in which the erection of the Oakland hotel is now cutting so large and conspicuous a figure.

WEBSTER STREET ELECTRIC ROAD.

The electrification of the Webster street railroad from Fourteenth and Franklin streets, within only one block of the new hotel, to Alameda and the Alameda mole, is only a matter of a few weeks now at farthest. When this is carried out the heart of Oakland and Alameda will be in direct communication by the shortest and most direct electric rapid transit route possible. Its effect on both cities, and particularly on Oakland property, is sure to be magical. Then, as it has been before stated, the electrification of the Seventh street line and the local steam railroad to

END OF IRONWORKERS' STRIKE RENEWS BUILDING

Industrial Peace Starts Work on Structures Which the Trouble Had Stopped.

Now that the ironworkers' strike has been settled, work will be resumed on several buildings that were stopped by it. The W. P. Fuller block at the southwest corner of Tenth and Alameda streets is one of those on which work has been suspended. The cement walls and central piers had just been finished and were ready for the iron work when the strike came and stopped the progress of the building operations. The firm expected to get into the new building on or before September 1st, but it is not expecting to do so until a considerably later date. Meantime it has a lease on the old Brenner building at the southeast corner of Harrison and Twelfth streets until January 1, 1908, so it will not suffer any special inconvenience through the delay.

Emeryville and Berkeley is to be taken up by the company, which will alter the whole status of property between Fourteenth and the southern water front.

EXPANDED RAILROAD PLANS.

The expansion of the plans of the Western Pacific on the western water front north of the north training wall of the entrance to the inner harbor is causing those who are interested in Oakland realty to "take notice." This corporation has great ambitions to gratify, and they are on the eve of taking tangible form. It is stirring its prospective rivals into greater activity than has ever before been in evidence. The more it unfolds its plans the more tenacious it makes holders of property adjacent to its lines. And it is a fact worthy of serious note that all of the southern water front from the mouth of the harbor to the line of Eighth street on the north arm of the estuary and nearly, if not quite, all of the water front along the East Oakland shore line to the tidal canal is in private ownership and being turned to account for industrial and commercial purposes. Perhaps most people do not know it, but it is nevertheless a fact that the better part of a million dollars is in course of expenditure along this frontage at the present time in the creation of permanent commercial improvement. The thoughtful, intelligent reader will quickly make the right deduction from it.

NEW ROW OF PRETTY COTTAGES, WHICH HAVE JUST BEEN FINISHED IN NORTH OAKLAND

FOUR COTTAGES BUILT BY R. S. KIEFFER AT FIFTY-SECOND AND GROVE STREETS.

Houses of the Kind Shown Above Are in Great Demand in City of Oakland and the Neighboring Cities at Present.

The four pretty cottages shown in the above illustration have just been erected in a row on Fifty-second and Grove streets from designs drawn by Architect Thomas Dean Newsom for R. S. Keiffer. Each one occupies a lot 30x100 and contains six rooms supplied with all modern conveniences. They have cost $1900 each.

The demand for cottages of this class in Oakland has kept the majority of the architects in this city busy for many months past. There is absolutely no sign of any "let up" in the demand, either, for as soon as a new residence is finished a score of applicants appear on the scene to rent it. Population is increasing as rapidly now as it has in any time since this side of the bay was sought as an asylum for the refugees who fled to escape from the great conflagration of April of last year. Thousands of those who came to Oakland, Berkeley and

Alameda and the suburban settlements at that time have discovered the real comforts of the climate and the beauties of the surrounding cities on this side of the bay and have made their permanent homes here. Vast areas of previously unoccupied territory have been occupied by them and charming homes have been erected thereon, adding to the attractions of Oakland and its environs, and to its health and population and industrial activities. Most of them are home-makers, although the army of tenant dwellers is finding difficulty, despite the enormous energy that is being displayed here, to provide them with suitable accommodations. Then, again, a vast number of people have been drawn here from abroad through the reports of the prosperity of the cities located on the eastern shore of the bay, and are making their homes in them. Every effort is being made by archiects, builders and property owners to "pick up" with this extraordinary demand for homes. With all the energy and expedition that is being displayed, the prospect of "picking up" and getting abreast of the demand seems to be as far in the future as it ever was, and the promise is now plainly in sight that there will be more activity in cottage and home building during the coming months than there has been at any time in the past.

LONG LEASE OF BIG BLOCK ON JEFFERSON

Oakland Central Hospital May Be Converted Into a Four-Story Apartment House.

Richard M. Briare has leased the Oakland Central Hospital block at the northwest corner of Thirteenth and Jefferson streets from Mrs. William W. Moreland for ten years. Terms of the lease are reserved.

Mr. Briare has not yet fully decided what he will do with the property. He had a special purpose in view in leasing it. But associated with that purpose are other plans which he intends to more thoroughly digest before fully making up his mind. If he decides to carry them out, they will include the erection of another story to the building as it stands, making it a four-story structure, the two upper stories of which will be made into an apartment house. The ground floor will be converted at the same time into stores, as the indications point at present into the transformation of Jefferson from a strictly residence street into a retail business thoroughfare.

St. Mark Hotel Walls Up and the Bank Buildings Make Rapid Progress.

The three big Class A buildings undergoing construction in the heart of the business quarter are making rapid progress. The steel frame of the new building of the Oakland Bank of Savings at Twelfth and Broadway is all in place and the concrete floors are being laid and the granite walls are mounting in the air.

The reinforced concrete walls of the First National Bank Building at the junction of Fourteenth and San Pablo and Telegraph avenues are rising rapidly and the process of construction is attracting much public attention.

The reinforced concrete walls of the St. Mark Hotel, at the southeast corner of Twelfth and Franklin, have reached the upper (eighth) story, and work on the interior has been started.

As these three buildings approach completion they change the entire aspect of that section of the city.

REVISED PLAN OF FREDERICK MARRIOTT'S NEW COTTAGE IN ALAMEDA

NEW BAYSHORE COTTAGE OF F. MARRIOTT ON BAY STREET, ALAMEDA.

Perspective Sketch of a Boulder-Walled Residence of Handsome Design Overlooking San Francisco Bay.

Since the TRIBUNE published, a few weeks ago, a perspective sketch of Frederick Marriott's new residence at the end of Bay street, Alameda, on the bay shore, he has decided to make material changes in the materials for its construction and in the arrangement of the grounds, which will make a decided increase in its cost and enhance the beauty of its appearance. The lower walls of the building are to be built entirely of boulders and cement, after the style of many of the handsome homes erected in Los Angeles and Pasadena. The boulders are drawn from the bed of the creek flowing through Niles Canyon. Piles of these materials are now on the premises ready for use in the construction of the walls. The original plan called for an expenditure approximating $6000. Newsom & Newsom, the architects, represent that the revised plans, a perspective sketch of which is here given, will increase the cost to possibly $10,000.

BUILDING IMPROVEMENTS ACROSS THE ESTUARY

Mammoth Apartment House to Be Erected in Alameda--Plans Are Completed.

ALAMEDA, June 22.—The Alameda Land Company has adopted plans for its big apartment house to be erected at the gore bounded by Morton and Sherman streets and Encinal and Central avenues, and it is promised that work will commence the first of the coming month.

Announcement of the intention to erect the apartment house was made three months ago, but it was not until last week that the plans were declared on and bids taken for the contract.

It is planned by the company to have the building ready for occupancy in about six months. The trees have been cleared from the gore, and there is nothing to impede the progress of the work. The plans call for a three-story frame building with tiled roof and containing fifty apartments of from three to seven rooms each. Each apartment will be complete with baths and other modern conveniences. On the ground floor there will be both store and apartment quarters. There will be a cafe, a delicatessen and grocery on the ground floor. Electric elevators and an independent electric lighting system will be installed.

The cost of the building will be in the neighborhood of $50,000. The gore forms a perfect site for the location of such an apartment house, as all of the rooms can be arranged so they will get the sun sometime during the day. A triangle court in the center will furnish light for all of the inside rooms. Paul E. Burkhard is the architect.

Robert Mott, one of the members of the Alameda Land Company, is now building a handsome residence at the corner of Grand street and Santa Clara avenue. The cost will be $8,000.

BERKELEY REAL ESTATE MARKET CONTINUES FIRM

Brokers Report Business Good, Building Improvements Numerous, Prices Steady.

BERKELEY, June 22.—Although this is the vacation season, real estate brokers report business good, a liberal inquiry for desirable property, continued influx of new population, property owners holding out for an advance in values all along the line, and building very active.

As one broker put it the other day: "there never was a time when the market was healthier. Booms like those which have been launched at times in the south, are not invited here. They create a feverish condition which is invariably followed by collapse. We may expect fits and starts in the matter of buying and selling, some weeks a larger volume of trade, other periods when the number of transactions are less; but these are conditions which exist in every business. And so long as the prices of realty continue to creep up whatever the volume of business transacted amounts to, it proves that property holders have confidence and that those who buy are not timid. Berkeley is boosting ahead fast enough to suit the most sanguine and ambitious."

GOSSIP FROM THE SAN FRANCISCO WEEKLIES

RUEF KNOWS WHAT STRUCK HIM.

Even amidst the wreck of his fallen fortunes, all of the Gallic lightness and humor which once characterized the debonaire "boss" has not departed from him. To a commiserating friend he is reported to have said: "I thought at first it was the heavy hand of Justice which had struck me, but on investigation it proves to be a sugar barrel."—Town Talk.

SCHMITZ'S ROUGH RIDERS.

T. Halloran, "chaplain" of the Rough Riders of California, is not a clergyman. Nor am I able to discover that he is particularly given to piety. However, as a union carpenter who had yawned consistently and vociferously for Schmitz in previous elections, he deserved an office and there was no one to dispute the chaplaincy. It was idle curiosity to learn who this Chaplain Halloran might be that prompted an inquiry, which was thus richly rewarded in information volunteered by an active Rough Rider. In the first place, my informant expects that most of the 2000 members will attend the encampment to be held on the last Sunday in June at Schuetzen Park. For though Schmitz is down and out, the Rough Riders go marching on and will protect the city treasury from foreign invasion to the last ditch. "While the Rough Riders were originally organized to aid Schmitz," concluded my informant, "their objects are non-political so far as parties are concerned, aiming to back the best candidates of all followings." Such catholicity is greatly to be commended.—Town Talk.

THE PICKET EYE.

If the evil eye superstition still had some influence over the credulous, the United Railroads would long ago have lost to the Carmen's Union. The public, which is willing to take chances with mere cobble stones and dynamite, would hardly care were it superstitious, to subject itself to the witchery of the union pickets. The pickets are certainly doing effective eye work. Even those have caught the trick whose eyes in ordinary circumstances are scarcely more notable than the traditional burnt holes in a blanket. The union glance is one of deep concentration and infinite scorn. It would penetrate the victim's soul and then tear out his name and address, leaving in its stead a horrible dread of future developments. The primitiveness of the idea invites another comparison. It is remarked by philosophers that primitive folks have their will under better control in many respects than the more cultured; as, for instance, the Polynesians would die of hunger rather than touch "tapu" food. Certainly not the most rabid union hater tramped the town in pre-strike days just because union men ran the cars.—Town Talk.

SHORTRIDGE WANTED IN BOISE CITY.

Another distinguished California attorney has been summoned from afar to devote his intellectual powers to the vindication of a man charged with murder. And once more the case in which those intellectual powers are required is one of world-wide interest. It is the case of the alleged murderers of Governor Steunenberg, and the lawyer is none other than the Henry Clay of our bar, the Hon. Samuel M. Shortridge. Negotiations for the employment of Mr. Shortridge were begun this week, and though he has virtually consented to cooperate with counsel for the defense, to what extent he shall conduct his services has not yet been determined. His presence at the scene of the trial is earnestly desired, the other attorneys in the case being of the opinion that he is able to render important service. They learned something about Mr. Shortridge's ability when they were investigating the matter of the explosion in this city, which, according to Harry Orchard's testimony was caused by a dynamite bomb with which he sought to take the life of Frederick W. Bradley.—Town Talk.

THE EXPLOSION CASE.

It is by a curious set of circumstances that Attorney Shortridge comes to be an object of interest to the Western Federation of Miners, and a rather strange story is that which links a civil lawsuit in San Francisco with the trial of a murderer in Boise City, Idaho. Moreover, it is a story that from its elements is of peculiar interest to the legal profession. In November, 1904, the story opened with an explosion at the corner of Leavenworth and Washington streets which wrecked the front of three flats owned by Walter Linforth, the attorney. Frederick W. Bradley, formerly superintendent of a mine in Idaho was at the moment of the explosion in the act of making his exit from one of the flats. Bradley was very seriously injured. From what the officers of the Fire Department learned of the circumstances of the explosion it was inferred that it was the result of a gas leak. Suit was brought on behalf of the landlord against the Gas Company and Shortridge handled the case for the plaintiff. The case was tried with a great deal of zeal on both sides. The principal feature of the trial was the expert testimony and it was Mr. Shortridge's deftness in tearing that expert testimony to tatters that lifted the case out of the domain of the prosaic.

DID BRADLEY HAVE THE RIGHT IMPRESSION?

There was only one simple question for the jury to determine, and that question involved the location of the gas leak. It was the plaintiff's theory that the leak occurred at the meter in the basement. Hence the responsibility of the Gas Company. It was the defendant's theory that it was a gas grate that leaked. Hence the responsibility of the landlord. The battle raged over this question. Neither side had any doubt respecting the character of the explosion. It was unquestionably a gas explosion. Bradley testified that just as he reached the front door on his way out of the house, he applied a lighted match to his cigar. He was lighting his cigar just as he opened the door, and he saw a blue flame shoot out from the cigar. His first impression was that somebody had given him a trick cigar. He had no second impression. The defense called Professors O'Neill and Muller from Berkeley, and those eminent scholars testified that it is a scientific fact that "gas kicks back." They were positive that if the gas which Bradley ignited on the first floor had come all the way from a leak in the basement it would have kicked back to the basement. The basement having exhibited no signs of distress it was obvious that the gas must have come from a leak on an upper floor. All this seemed self-evident until Attorney Shortridge, who used to teach chemistry among other things, in a country school, before taking up the study of law, and who crammed himself for the occasion, raked those scientific gentlemen fore and aft with a rattling fire of withering interrogatories. He first asked them if they had ever heard of the celebrated Thomas Graham. They looked at Judge Graham, who presided over the trial, and confessed that they had. But Attorney Shortridge alluded to Graham the Scotch chemist and it was with the aid of that scholar that he completely upset the notion of the kicking proclivities of gas. The jury gave him a verdict for $10,000. The case was appealed and it is still on appeal. But now comes Harry Orchard, principal witness for the prosecution in the case of the men charged with the murder of Governor Steunenberg, with the story that it wasn't gas at all that wrecked Linforth's flats and confined Frederick Bradley to a single impression one memorable morning in November, 1904. He avers that it was dynamite that exploded, and that he was responsible for the explosion, explaining furthermore that Bradley was one of the men marked for slaughter by the associated assassins known as the Western Federation of Miners. Now while Orchard's testimony complicates the case of Linforth against the Gas Company, it remains to be determined whether he has been merely lying. One thing is certain; it is no longer so important to determine whether gas has a kick in it as to ascertain whether Mr. Bradley's impression of a blue flame was nothing more than a delusion contracted in the moments of his unconsciousness that followed the opening of a door which had a bomb tied to it.—Town Talk.

JOSELYN IN PARIS.

Mr. Charles Josselyn, author of "The True Napoleon," and one of the most distinguished of the Bohemian Club's literati, is being taken seriously in Paris. In this city where the standards of literary taste are not remarkably high Mr. Josselyn's literary work is regarded as something of a joke. Because his "True Napoleon" was written mainly with a scissors, the local critics, who have a hard and fast prejudice in favor of the typewriter as an implement of the literary craft, have sneered the work almost into disrepute. Yet it contains many of the best things that were said about the great Corsican by writers for whom Mr. Josselyn has profound admiration. According to a correspondent of the New York Herald, Mr. Josselyn "is making his temporary home in France on account of his admiration for Napoleon." And the correspondent says that "long before he had ever been in Europe he wrote and published a life of Napoleon purely as a matter of personal esteem." Which, of course, is no small token of appreciation. During the course of an interview with the Herald's correspondent, Mr. Josselyn said that he obtained the material for his "True Napoleon," not in France but in histories. "I guess I read them all," he said. "It was a big task, but it was worth it."

A SMASH AT SAN FRANCISCO.

The correspondent by whom the Josselyn interview was written sent the Herald the following news which is of some local interest: "Nearly all Californians are very much disgruntled at the financial conditions existing in San Francisco. Lack of business confidence has upset many plans and ruined many a European summer outing. It is absolutely impossible to borrow money in San Francisco now," said one gentleman who is largely interested in business affairs there, "for building purposes or the improvement of real estate. If a man is a merchant the banks will let him have grudgingly a little money to carry on his business with, and that is all. I owned thirty houses that were completely destroyed either by the earthquake or fire, and I cannot raise a cent to rebuild them, although I own the land outright." "Why," he continued, "I am half owner of a bank in a small California city. I was told by my agent the other day to ask them for a loan of $20,000. They replied by asking if I could not get along with $10,000. That from a bank half own and where two years ago my note for $100,000 would have been taken without question."—Town Talk.

MRS. MARTIN FOR HARMONY.

Mrs. Eleanor Martin's genius, that expresses itself through the social arts, has been vivifying mere existence for those who were at the last ditch of boredom. No one's ear is more delicately attuned than the dowager Eleanor's to the little rift within the social lute. The discord that started in the Grand Jury chambers, spread to Pacific Avenue, and finally clanged into the very heart of Burlingame is not to the liking of this diplomatic dame. "Let the men fight it out, but let us have peace," she said to her skirted henchmen, who took up the slogan and sounded it where the cooling bubbles merriest. But the white dove of peace is a coy bird and having been driven away by the icy breath of discord, refused to flutter back at the first sign of truce. Having put on her war paint for peace, Mrs. Martin determined not to fizzle out in the usual manner of peace conference. Less intrepid workers in the cause of patching the rents in the garb of the smart set resigned the task in desperation. But Mrs. Martin evolved a daring plan that seemed to be perfectly simple. She would give a tea and assemble the warring factions. She did and the tea was a frost. Mrs. Martin has become resigned to the frappe layer in society. Her tea, not serving to scald the icicles, the dinner which she gave in honor of General Davis, who is out here on Red Cross work, was not a love feast in disguise. Warring factions were not given a chance to peel off their armor and trifle with terrapin. General and Mrs. Funston, Mr. and Mrs. Calhoun and Mrs. Bowie-Detrick represented the married set, and Virginia Joliffe, Elsie Sperry, Lillie O'Connor, Winifred Mears and an equal number of men completed the party.—Town Talk.

PRAISE FROM SIR TRISTAN.

The Vicomte de Tristan, who is related to San Francisco by marriage, has been throwing large scented bouquets at us through an interview in a French newspaper. The Vicomte and his wife, who was Miss de Guigne, arrived in Paris not long ago and de Tristan has been proclaiming the wonders of these people by the western sea. This young Frenchman does not see us with the jaundiced eye that most foreigners train upon our short comings. I remember at the first Greenway ball of last season he worked himself up into a fine frenzy of appreciation. He rushed up to one woman after another and ecstatically breathed "Regarde! The beautiful women, the flashing jewels, the soft music, the flowers!" When taking them up to the window that looked out on a sea of ruin and desolation he said, "Viola, now look on this picture and confess that you are the most wonderful people the moon ever looked down upon. A ball against a background of despair—and such a ball!" Oh, la, la, la, la, we are a wonderful people, and its awfully nice for de Tristan to show us to Paris in a form not labeled "graft"—which term is being mutilated to us in fashion altogether too generous and too world-wide.—Town Talk.

CUPID'S LATEST.

Mrs. Grundy told me the other day that when Bernardo Shorb asked John Sheehan to accept him as a son-in-law Mr. Sheehan remarked that little boys were supposed to be weaned before entering into the state of matrimony. However, as youth is the one fault we all outgrow, Mr. Sheehan finally consented to the marriage of the young couple. The young man was preparing to enter Stanford University next semester but will go into business instead. Miss Sheehan is an attractive young girl who was the special protegee of Mrs. Ynez Shorb White last winter and Mrs. White has beamed on her brother's suit. The engagement is to be very abrupt, the wedding to take place on July 2 at St. Mary's Cathedral, with a reception afterwards at the Fairmont. The wing of society which greets its feathered after Mrs. White will be fully represented at the affair. It was at Mrs. White's dance that Frances Coon met Oliver Kehrlein and I hear that when the accounts of those cotillions are fully audited there will be served more cardiac affairs credited to the influence of those tripping hours.—Town Talk.

STETSON DIVORCE.

While the Stetson decree of divorce does not award soup, salad and pumpkin pie an impregnable position in California law, a certain legal status was given these viands as far as lay in the power of the Superior Court. A millionaire, says the Court, must furnish soups and salads to his wife, and not overload her tummy with punkin pie. Of course, there always was an unwritten law on the latter subject, known as Dementia Punkiana. It confers on a woman the undeniable right to hurl a bottle of hair restorative at the pie-face, simultaneously laying shrill imprecations on the victim's head and rubbing them in. A jury would acquit them all day long on that score.

There is another side of the case; the inside. And, without casting any slur upon the piece of edible bric-a-brac that made little Johnny yell for the doctor, it cannot be said to bear upon the true inwardness of this case. The casus belli was a social, not a digestive anguish. When the widow of the demi-millionaire, John S. Doe, was espoused to James B. Stetson, she was taking a post-graduate course of middle age. She had wealth, but not the immaculate sort that buys the things you read about adjectived as "prominent," "swell," "exclusive," in the places where every woman is "attractive," "charming," "well-known,"—those divine environments where reputation can fall down the stairs with a bottle in one hand, a terrapin saute in the other, and land on the feet without blemish. Now, at that time James B. Stetson was pretty much of a Shogun in San Francisco, and whenever he opened his mouth, it was "space" for the lucky reporter who happened to be there. In early days he kept a hardware shop. But every body did anything then. After tin-canning his way to a fortune and railway presidency, he was regarded as one of the political spirits of the day. As a possibility for Mayor, he was so choice, that he was almost chosen. Mrs. Stetson figured on playing with society through her newly-acquired stepdaughters, Mrs. Robert Oxnard and Mrs. Chauncey Winslow. But they were disobedient dollies and would not so much as say mamma when she pulled the strings. She was not even allowed in her husband's set. The situation was novel, to say the least; but she had not even the privilege of saying half of that. When a woman has no pull even with her own household, there is nothing left but an advance on the merits. And the merits of shop-keepers she did not care to use. It was an incongruous case. The lady was actually in society, from a physical standpoint, when at her own table. But society could not see it. She was invisible and made no reflection in the mirrors of her own millionairehood. In this she was the converse of her former husband's celebrated namesake, John Doe, the defendant in myriad litigations. Though summons and complaint are continually issued to him, he is as elusive as she was eager; impalpable as she was impossible. Perhaps, though, now that James B. Stetson is become a paler star in the West, his interlocutory wife will be seen ascendant in the opposite key. Time is notoriously unsatisfied with his own work and oft finishes the picture in purples where he began in gray.

There was an old magnate named Stetson,—
A man we used to place bets on.
But he gave not a whoop
For salad or soup,
And so his wife gave him the jetson.

For retaining her wifely affection
He had one supreme predilection,
And would always rely
On one sort of pie—
A punkin of fallow complexion.

He made his first money in tin-ware;
But now you can see that he's been where
The men wear Tuxedos,
While maids, wives and widows
No clothing a foot from the chin wear.

JUDGE HEBBARD.

In prospect of the solemnity of his citation before the Bar Association, Judge Hebbard turned out a book of poetry entitled "The Flippant Age." It must be said that this age verily is decidedly flippant; especially in this city. In fact, here there has been more flippant than the flippant. These conditions moved the judge gently to tintinnabulate the bell of admonition. He could not be severe. Judge Hebbard's temperament is as mellow and soothing as a high-priced cigar. He even eliminated from his volume poems he thought might cause a pang to some soul in distress. He has an Old Pleasant Smile demeanor beneath the judicial frown and could not find it in himself to retaliate in anything other than a kindly manner to his most inflated critics. Our quick-tongued, triple-motion, big-spectacled friend, Mr. Hebbard, is not in sympathy with Judge Hebbard's muse, particularly when it inspires him on the bench. It was in the Ruef case that His Honor, handing Heney a lemon-hued decision, incurred the snappy prosecutor's anger. The nectar of the muses in this instance was said to have been bottled in bond. The decision was rendered with hilarious wave of the hand that San Francisco brooked ill at a time when graftophobia was at the height of its fury. The charge now being investigated by the Bar Association is "intemperance." But now, the intemperate appetite of the prosecution has begun to cause revulsion even among those who were gluttons for indictment, and they will be inclined to demand mercy for Hebbard, if only from a standpoint of being sick of slaughter. It is likely that he granted Ruef's petition because he hardly has it in his big, buoyant, brotherly heart to refuse anybody anything; likely also that he never delivers a decree in any case without a dithyrambic, flippant, heartfelt or Old Scotch tear for the loser. The Superior Court, though somewhat irksome, is not an unpleasant place where to while away a few hours a day. Few judges willingly resign the bench. Hebbard evidently finds it a cosy spot. Yet it is in him, if ousted from the job, to find jovial relaxation in the pages of "The Flippant Age."

The poem, "Recompense," printed below, came to the Wasp as an autograph copy, signed simply "J. C. B. Hebbard," and seems to exhibit the bard in a mature and Thanaotopical state of mind. A cursory glance will convince the most skeptical that there is no flippancy here. All is calm, and mostly dead. There being fourteen lines to the composition, the idea of a sonnet cannot fail to suggest itself, but the elaborate rhyming system of the sonnet form is lacking. The poet has taken to himself the simplest of line endings, making one rhyme do for them all. Nor is he hampered in his search for variety, for the word "dead" is found five times to the good. The prevailing metre is iambics. The first four lines are two feet each; thence to the southeast corner, quadrameters, saving the twelfth line, which is a pentameter and the thirteenth line which is prose. There is no striving for sesquipedalian effect, most of the words being one syllable. It must also be said that the thought is more depressed than elevated, and the style well suited to the thought. All in all, and especially in these trying times, it is sad, very sad.

Recompense.

A man lay dead,
And then he said,
As he lay dead,
Upon the bed,
And scattered flowers around his head—
"He was a good man, and he fed
The poor and hungry," but instead
Of doing so while life he led,
They waited till the man was dead;
And in the papers then 'twas read,
"He was a good man, but he's dead,"
And then they scattered flowers around his head.
While alive he scattered bread—
Now he has flowers, when he's dead.

ELK'S TOOTH.

The elk's tooth, the emblem of the order name "the antlered monarch," says Superior Judge Henry A. Melvin, Grand Exalted Ruler, must be abolished. But the members of the organization do not seem to take kindly to his suggestion. At least it would appear so, judging by the number of members who are still clinging to elk's teeth. The Grand Exalted Ruler is right, however, in his advice. The way the elks are being slaughtered in order to furnish teeth for emblematic purposes is a crying shame, and no doubt the members of this mighty organization will take the leader's advice when it comes up before the body as a whole.—News Letter.

PROFESSOR STEPHENS.

They think down in Santa Barbara that they cannot turn around in an educational way without Professor Henry Morse Stephens at their heels. To be sure the clever educator has a way of telling them that they are intellectually "it," but I have heard other cities boast that "Prof. Stephens said that this is the most remarkable city, so far as culture goes, that he has ever come across." I think the learned man is to be excused and sympathized with, and I believe in my heart that he finds many of them more than "remarkable." This last trip was to Santa Barbara for the purpose of delivering the commencement address before the High School, and he talked on old education and new, with of course a leaning toward the modern. Professor Stephens was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Howard during his stay from Friday morning until Saturday night.—Wasp.
